The cemetery commissioners of the town of Dracut have asked for an injunction restraining the city of Lowell from selling the Hildreth cemetery, advertised in The Sun, yesterday, as follows:

Hildreth cemetery, 118,037 square feet of land, more or less, (cemetery) on the west side of Hildreth street, with land now or formerly of Celia M. The following notice relative to the sale of the cemetery was read by Mayor O'Donnell at a meeting of the municipal council this forenoon and was referred to the city solicitor and commissioner of finance:

LOCAL WORKERS FOOLED BY AGENT

Help Seekers by False Statements Induce Many to Give Up Work and Go to New Hampshire

According to a letter received by a resident of this city from a former Lowell man who is now working in the cotton mills at Newmarket, New Hampshire, the people of this and other Massachusetts cities are being imposed upon by the proprietors of employment offices and mill agents who travel through the different cities to secure help for the up country mills. It is said that these help seekers frequent the sections of the cities occupied by foreigners and by false statements induce these foreigners and sometimes English speaking people to give up their positions in the local mills to go with them to the New Hampshire towns. The people are led to believe that the wages paid there are much higher than here and that all transportation expenses are paid, but the employee who follows the advice of this agent after he has worked a week learns that the fare is taken from his wages and that the agent who secured him to go to mill also receives a sum which is taken from the pay envelope. The average wages paid a man or woman are in the vicinity of $7 or $8, about the same that is paid in the cotton mills of this city.

During the past month a man applied at a local employment office for work and he with his family was sent to a New Hampshire town by the agent. The railroad tickets were paid for and a tenement of two rooms was found for him. The man seemed satisfied with the place during his stay there but at the end of two weeks when he expected to receive a full week's pay he was handed an envelope containing fifty cents and upon complaining at the office he learned that transportation expenses were taken out and the sum of two dollars sent to the agent who secured him. Although very much discouraged the man was without funds and it was necessary for him to remain at work in order to pay the bills that had been contracted by him during his short stay. It is said that a number of Lowell people have been fooled the same way and upon their return to this city are given no satisfaction by the shipping agent.

FORCIBLY DEPORTED FROM CANADA TODAY

Rushed Over Vermont Border After Struggle With Immigration Officials — Went to N. H. and Was Captured

COLEBROOK, N. H., Sept. 10.—Harry Kendall Thaw enjoyed three brief hours of liberty in northern New England today but was arrested shortly before noon on a country road, five miles from here by Sheriff Holman Drew of Coos county.

Thaw, in an automobile with some reporters, was driving down the road and had reached a little rural school house when an auto containing the sheriff appeared in sight. The sheriff, recognizing Thaw, held up his hand for the car to stop. Thaw ordered the chauffeur, a French-Canadian, to bring the auto to a standstill and then alighted and went into the sheriff's car without protest although the officer had no warrant for his arrest.

Thaw Not to Jail.

Thaw and the reporters then proceeded to Colebrook. Thaw was not locked up in jail but was taken to the office of Tom Johnson, a local lawyer, whom he retained as his legal adviser on his arrival here.

During the early part of his flight from Norton Mills, Thaw lost his hat and when he reached here he wore a cap borrowed from one of his newspaper friends. His only possession was a bunch of cigars.

As soon as he arrived here with his prisoner, Sheriff Drew wired William Travers Jerome of the arrest of Thaw and requested Mr. Jerome to come here at once to take charge of the fugitive. Later in the day Thaw will be taken to Lancaster, the county seat, and confined in the county jail.

No Attempt to Stop Him

When Thaw crossed the international boundary at nine o'clock, only a dozen persons were at Norton Mills and none of them made any attempt to detain his car.

For the first time since his arrest at Coaticook, three weeks ago, Thaw was a free man. He stood for a few moments, not knowing which way to go, and then asked one of the reporters who had followed him from Coaticook in an automobile if he might enter his car. Permission was granted and the party started immediately for Averill, where a stop was made at the village inn.

On reaching Averill, Thaw tried to get into telephone communication with his mother and his lawyers at Montreal but the line was working badly and he was unsuccessful. He had breakfast at the inn and partook of a bowl of bread and milk.

Went Back to Canada

Re-entering the auto Thaw and the reporters doubled back into Canada for a short distance and then returned to American territory through Canaan and Beecher Falls, Vt., and then crossed the Connecticut river into New Hampshire at 10 o'clock. Throughout the trip Thaw made no attempt to conceal his identity.

Thaw Nervous

The first stop was made in New Hampshire at West Stewartstown where Thaw stood in the village square for ten minutes, talking freely with those gathered about him. He was very nervous and tried again to get into touch with his mother and attorneys.

After leaving West Stewartstown Thaw stopped at the farm of Mrs. Martha Appleton, where he entered the kitchen and asked for permission to use the telephone. Again he failed to connect, either with Montreal or Coaticook, where court was in session and where he wished to be taken to New Hampshire authorities.

After leaving Mrs. Appleton's farm Thaw proceeded about five miles down the road, where he was arrested by Sheriff Drew.

Thaw Greatly Surprised

No one was more surprised than Thaw at today's deportation, proceedings. He was awakened in the detention room at Coaticook about eight o'clock by immigration officials, who told him they were going to return him to the United States.

For a moment Thaw was stunned by the news, then he became excited. Seizing a bottle on the table he hurled it at the head of one of the officers, but the man ducked and the missile crashed through a window.

A few moments later he was dragged and pushed out of the building and rushed into an auto.

"They're kidnapping me," he screamed. "They've no right to do this. They're violating all the principles of law." "They can't have me. I was to go to Montreal on habeas corpus."

As the car drove away Thaw was still shouting his protests.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL MET

Vote to Pay Coal Bill Rescinded

ALD. BROWN SAYS WILSON COAL BILL NOT DUE

Playground Proposed for West Centralville May Be Leased from Locks and Canals Co.

The municipal council met this forenoon for the purpose of approving bills and after being in session about 10 minutes adjourned to meet next Tuesday forenoon.

Mayor O'Donnell read Dracut's notice of injunction to restrain the city of Lowell from selling the Hildreth cemetery or a portion thereof for sidewalk assessment and the matter was referred to the city solicitor and the commissioner of finance. The cemetery story appears in another column.

At its meeting yesterday the council voted to approve a bill rendered by E. A. Wilson & Co. The bill amounted to something over $100 and today Commissioner Brown asked that the council rescind its action of yesterday in approving the bill.

"On what grounds?" asked the mayor. "Because the goods were not received and the city does not owe the bill. The company cannot prove its claim." The council voted to rescind its action.

The council also voted to remove the firm alarm and police telephone box from the old Boston & Maine depot at Tower's corner to Williams street. The petition of Thomas W. Fraser and others for a light at or near 520 Parker street was referred to the proper committee.

West Centralville Playground

Mayor O'Donnell sent a communication to Engineer Hiram F. Mills of the Locks & Canals "some time ago" asking to be willed land for a playground in West Centralville and has received the following reply:

Hon. James E. O'Donnell, Mayor of Lowell: Dear Sir:

Your letter of Aug. 30 with accompanying plan was duly received. The small portion north of the south line of Conduit avenue, formerly of the Reade estate, is not the property of the Locks and Canals Co.

Of the remainder, containing about nine acres of upland, you desire to know at my earliest convenience if the company will lease for 10 or 20 years for park and playground purposes and the amount of rental that will be asked.

There will not be a meeting of the directors until near the end of the month.

I think, however, that a lease for 10 years for the purposes named may be made, with the understanding that filling may be continued on the very low portions of the territory, at a rental of $5 a year and taxes.

Respectfully yours,
Hiram F. Mills,
Engineer, P. L. & C.

Lowell Opera House

That the feature pictures being shown at the Lowell opera house are pleasing the theatregoers of this city is plainly shown by the ever increasing patronage of this popular playhouse.

Beginning with the matinee today, one of the biggest feature pictures ever shown in the city of Lowell will be presented at this temple of mirth. As an extra and added attraction, Victorien Sardou's "Theodora," in three reels, employing over 500 actors, and produced at a cost of over $100,000 will be seen there today and tomorrow.

The story tells of the love of "Theodora," the empress of the Roman empire, for "Andreas," a Greek, and the leader of the rebels; of their trials and tribulations and their unhappy end caused by jealousy. It is truly a wonderful picture, showing the Roman soldiers in deadly combat, and the mammoth arena scenes. In addition to the above feature will be seen "The Fatal Scar," a Lubin drama; "The Troublesome Daughters," a Vitagraph comedy; "The Good Indian," a Satish Indian drama; "The Camera's Testimony," another Lubin product; and the "Smuggler's Last Deal," a Kalem production.

HEARING ON CHILD LABOR LAW

A Special Legislative Committee Will Come to Lowell on Sept. 18 to Investigate Complaints

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—Because of complaint of the effect of the new child labor law, particularly in the industrial centers of the state, the special committee of the house of representatives, appointed to investigate conditions surrounding the employment of women and children in Massachusetts, decided yesterday to make a tour of inspection in the leading textile centers for the purpose of securing first-hand information as to the attitude of employers toward the new statute.

Information has been brought to the committee by Representative John C. Farborn of Lawrence and Representative Henry A. Ahlin, Jr. of Lowell, that about a hundred of minors in their cities have been discharged because of the new law. Both declared that in their judgment the law would prove beneficial if employers would approach it in the proper spirit, but in view of the fact that many employers have not hesitated to employ minors under the restrictions imposed, they felt it would be better to wipe the statute off the books.

Henry Sterling, representing organized labor, said the situation means that employers have the power to employ children shall either over-work or not work at all, and said the legislature must do something to do away with such a dangerous situation. He said it would be nothing more than fair if organized labor should demand of the next legislature that the same restrictions be placed upon the employment of women, that is, that they should not be employed for more than eight hours a day. In that way, he said, manufacturers would be compelled either to come down to an eight-hour day or close their factories.

After listening to the complaints of the Lawrence and Lowell representatives, the committee decided to visit Lowell on Thursday, Sept. 18, and to give a hearing, at which manufacturers will be invited to explain why they cannot arrange to continue the employment of minors in accordance with the statute.

On Tuesday next, at 11 o'clock, the committee will visit New Bedford for a similar hearing, and a hearing will be given in Lawrence, though no date has as yet been set.

Chairman Willard Howard of the state board of conciliation and arbitration told the committee of the work of the laws under which the board operated and suggested that the board's efficiency might be increased if it had only arbitration work to do.

He explained that in its conciliation and mediation work the board is somewhat forced to take a position which may lead either of the parties to feel

HUB O'CONNORS RAKE ANCESTRY

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Boston's five hundred and more O'Connors, a clan which history says is descended from Roderick O'Connor, the last of the kings of Ireland, are raking over their ancestry today, not to discover exactly how many crowns have graced their ancestors' brows, but instead to discover if they are entitled to a share of the $75,000 estate reported left by a man named O'Connor who died recently in a western town.

Circulars have been sent by a firm of attorneys to every O'Connor in the Boston directory. The deceased, whose identity is kept a secret, is said to have left his home in Boston years ago to seek his fortune. He died recently, leaving an estate valued at $75,000, but nothing else. An eager canvass in hopes of an heir among themselves is now taking place in this famous clan.

Looking for Man Who Bought Tar Paper Meet New Conditions

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Inquiry into the murder mystery uncovered by the finding late last week of parts of the dismembered body of an unidentified girl along the New Jersey shore of the Hudson river centered yesterday in the upper west side section of this city, where it has been found the pillow-slip wrapped about one part of the body was purchased. From a drugist whose shop is directly opposite the furniture establishment where the pillow-slip was bought, it was learned that a man in his shirt sleeve and apparently greatly excited had purchased two sheets of tar paper similar to that with which parts of the torso were covered.

This development caused the detective bureau to work on the theory that the murder was committed in the vicinity in question and a thorough search of the vicinity is being made for possible further clues.

PANIC FOLLOWS CRASH

Six Were Hurt When Car Struck Auto

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Six persons were hurt and many were shaken up when a trolley car collided with a heavily laden automobile milk truck at the corner of Centre and Main streets, Malden, last evening. The car was crowded, most of the passengers being women. Following the crash there was a rush for the door and a panic ensued.

The driver of the automobile truck, Ernest W. Carey, and his four assistants were thrown to the ground. Mrs. Louis C. Beckwith of 10 Everett street, Malden, a passenger on the car, was badly shaken up and suffered from hysteria. She was removed to a drug store and later sent home.

The car was libeled from Lebanon street and struck the automobile heavily on the side. The cans and bottles of milk were scattered in all directions, and as the passengers fled from the car they waded through rivulets of milk in the street.

The side of the automobile was demolished, and the driver, Ernest W. Carey, of 8 Mill street, Charlestown, was badly bruised about the face. The others on the automobile who were badly bruised and shaken up were Patrick Flynn of 216 Washington street, Somerville, and John O'Rourke of 231 Washington street, Somerville.

14 DEAD IN AIRSHIP CATASTROPHE

German Marine Dirigible Was Wrecked by Hurricane and Fell Into the North Sea

HELGOLAND, North Sea, Sept. 10.—Torpedo boat destroyers with their searchlights flashing over the dark waters remained all night at the scene of yesterday's airship catastrophe in which 14 officers and men out of a crew of 21 perished when the new German marine dirigible Zeppelin T-15, while flying from the German coast to this island was wrecked in a hurricane. No further airmen, living or dead, were discovered today. Thirteen corpses, including those of Captain Metzling, chief of the naval airship service; Captain Lanne, commander of the wrecked dirigible and Lieut. Baron von Maltzahn and the engineer officer, Wehner, undoubtedly are confined in the cabin of the airship which lies at the bottom of one of the deepest parts of the North Sea. The fourteenth victim was picked up by boats launched from the destroyers but he was dead when taken from the water.

The airship was engaged in reconnaissance work in connection with torpedo boat maneuvers and when struck by the gale was diving at a height of from 1200 to 3000 feet.

The balloon had sustained a heavy loss of gas due to the cold atmosphere and already was unmanageable when caught by the storm. The enormous amount of water ballast, thrown overboard and fell into the sea at a point about 15 miles north of Helgoland.

The hurricane which destroyed the latest German naval airship, turned into a steady gale today and it has been impossible to locate the wreck.

Avoided Accident
It became known today that a hydroplane accompanying the dirigible also had a narrow escape from destruction. The aviator, Lieut. Langfeld, however, saw the cyclonic storm approaching and piloted his machine toward Helgoland. He landed just in time.

The Zeppelin T-15 tried to climb the storm but was drawn into it. The ladders and machines were useless and the heavy rain and furious winds jammed the helpless craft seaward.

The occupants of the forward car persons saved were riding in the rear cover had a chance to escape. The gondola.

SENATE PASSES THE TARIFF BILL

Vote Was 44 to 37—Many Surprises—Measure Goes to House Today for Conference

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The democratic revision bill passed the senate at 4:43 o'clock yesterday afternoon amid a burst of applause that swept down from crowded galleries and found its echo on the crowded floor of the senate. Its passage was attended with surprises in the final moments of the voting when Senator La Follette, republican, cast his vote with the democrats and was joined a few moments later by Senator Poindexter, progressive.

The democrats had counted throughout the long tariff fight upon losing the votes of Senators Ransdell and Thornton of Louisiana, democrats, who voted against the bill yesterday because it would put sugar on the free list. Until the names of Senators La Follette and Poindexter were actually called, however, no one knew definitely the stand they would take, and their votes were greeted with enthusiastic applause.

Pres. Wilson Gratified

President Wilson last night expressed great gratification over the end of the long struggle in the senate. Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee who had piloted the bill through the senate committee, the democratic caucus and the senate, predicted that its passage would bring immediate stimulus to the business of the country.

As it passed the senate, the tariff bill represents an average reduction of more than four per cent. from the rates of the original bill that passed the house, and nearly 28 per cent. from the rates of the existing law. In many particulars the senate has changed the bill that passed the house, and a conference committee of the two houses will begin work Wednesday or Thursday to adjust these differences. Leaders of both houses predict that the conference will consume less than two weeks' time.

To Hasten the Bill

The senate endeavored yesterday to hasten the bill on its progress to the White House by naming its members of the conference committee as soon as the bill passed. Vice President Marshall appointed Senators Simmons, Stone, Williams and Johnson, democrats, and Senators Penrose, Lodge and La Follette, republicans, as the senate conferees. Senator Stone withdrew from the committee and Senator Shively was appointed in his place. The house conferees, it was reported last night, will be Representatives Underwood, Kitchin and Rainey, democrats, and Payne and Fordney, republicans. Each house will have an equal vote in the conference committee, even though each does not have the same number of conferees.

The Roll Call

Following was the roll call on the tariff bill:

Total 44.

Nays: Borah, Bradley, Brady, Brandegee, Bristow, Catron, Clapp, Clark of Wyoming, Colt, Cummins, Dillingham, Falk, Gallinger, Jackson, Jones, Kenyon, Lippitt, Lodge, McCumber, McLean, Nelson, Norris, Oliver, Page, Penrose, Perkins, Root, Sherman, Smoot, Stephenson, Sterling, Sutherland, Warren, Weeks and Works, (republicans) and Randall and Thornton, (democrats). Total 37.

Crawford, Goff, Du Pont, Townsend and Smith of Michigan, (republicans); Bankhead, Bryan, Cullerston, Lea, Thomas and Reed, (democrats). Total 12.

Senator Simmons Congratulated

When the vote had been announced, Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, the leader of the minority, was recognized and congratulated Senator Simmons for his "courteous, kindly, and considerate manner" in the conduct of the debate. "He said he knew of no tariff fight characterized by such good feeling throughout and attributed it to the personality of Senator Simmons."

"The bill itself is bad," he said, "but its management has been in every way creditable to the majority, and eminently fair to the minority." Senator Simmons expressed his appreciation. Last night he said there was little for him to say that he had not said in debate. The bill, he asserted would go to the country and speak for itself.

Predicts Better Times

"I am greatly gratified that the bill has passed and I think that it will not be long in conference. In my opinion there has been some stagnation of business in the country pending the action of the senate. Now I believe there will be an immediate stimulus to business and in the end we will have better times in this country."

Just before the voting on amendments began, Senator La Follette yielded a few minutes of his time to Senator Thornton of Louisiana, who was about to desert his colleagues on the roll call.

"It is hard for me to vote against this bill," said the Louisiana senator. "It is a bill made a party measure by the party with which I voted allegiance forty-six years ago. It is harder still that I am forced to vote against it, that my own party now seeks to strike a vital blow against the great sugar industry of my state."

Charged With Duty

The senator said that he was charged with a duty from his state higher than any duty he owed the democratic party and voting against the bill, he contended, was keeping his pledge to his state and to the democratic party of Louisiana, which denounced free sugar in its last election. Free sugar, the senator concluded, would destroy the sugar industry of Louisiana, and "deliver the American people into the hands of a rapacious trust."

Income tax amendments by Senators Bristow and La Follette similar to those they introduced several days ago, were defeated by votes of 51 to

18, and 53 to 16, respectively. An amendment by Senator Gallinger that proposed to send the whole tariff question over until December, 1914, and submit the bill to a popular referendum next fall was defeated 63 to 16. An amendment by Senator Catron for 20 per cent. duty on raw wool, was defeated, 42 to 35, and a general substitute wool bill once by Senator Knott was defeated without a roll call.

Censor Moving Pictures

One important change, made on the recommendation of the finance committee, gives the secretary of the treasury powers to censor all moving picture films imported. An amendment by Senator McCumber proposing higher duties on barley, oats, wheat and flaxseed, was rejected 48 to 25, and one by Senator La Follette for a five cent duty on wheat was defeated without a roll call.

Senator James, acting for the finance committee, secured the adoption of an amendment modifying the provision of the bill that authorized the secretary of the treasury and collector of internal revenue to employ income tax officials without regard to the civil service laws. The new provision leaves it optional with the officials as to whether or not they will take employees from the list of civil service eligibles.

"Great," Says President

President Wilson last night issued the following statement:

"A fight for the people and for free business which has lasted a long period through has at last been won handsomely and completely. A leadership and a steadfastness in counsel has been shown in both houses of which the democratic party has reason to be very proud. There has been no weakness or confusion or drawing back, but a statesmanlike directness and command of circumstance. I am happy to have been connected with the government of the nation at a time when such things could happen and to have worked in association with men who could do them. There is every reason to believe that currency reform will be carried through with equal energy, directness and loyalty to the general interest. When that is done this first session of the sixty-third congress will have passed into history with unrivaled distinction. I want to express my special admiration for the devoted, intelligent and untiring work of Mr. Underwood and Mr. Simmons and the committee associated with them."

When the president was asked to comment on the votes of Senator La Follette and Senator Poindexter, he expressed very warm admiration for their "conscientious independence and courage."

The president, while always confident that the democratic majority would be kept intact to pass the passage of a bill by a safe margin, had been hoping for the votes of progressive republicans. He told some of his friends last night that aid of this kind outside of the party ranks was one of the concrete evidences that the democratic party was progressive.

Personally the president felt happy over the result. He had just returned from the gold links when Secretary Tumulty, who had been an eager auditor in the senate gallery, drove rapidly to the White House and beaming with smiles told the president of the vote.

"Great" was the president's first remark, as he went to his study and telephoned Chairman Simmons his hearty congratulations.

The president hopes to share the vacations which members of the senate are about to take by going to Cornish, N. H., for a few days. Unless the Mexican situation develops an unexpected turn, he will leave here Thursday.

DEMOCRATIC TARIFF BILL AS IT

PASSED SENATE BACK TO

HOUSE TODAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The democratic tariff revision bill, as it passed the senate last night changed in many particulars from the form in which it left the house over a month ago, went back to that body today and tomorrow will find its way into a joint conference committee where the finishing touches will be given to it. The senate stole a march on the house when immediately after passing the bill it decided to "hold" upon its amendments and ask for a conference. Under this procedure when the bill went to the house today there was nothing for the house to do but to accept the amendments or meet the request of the senate for the appointment of a house committee. The move of the senate leaders while formal in character saved a day's time in getting the bill into the joint conference committee.

Preliminary conferences within the last two weeks between Representatives Underwood and Senator Simmons, the tariff leaders of the two bodies, have led to an understanding that little time will be consumed in the conference discussion of the bill. It was predicted today that the measure probably would be ready for the president within ten days.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

N. F. Keith's Theatre

Some idea of the magnitude of "Nepenthe's Garden," appearing at the N. F. Keith theatre, this week, may be gained, when it is known that the actors appear on the stage including divers, acrobats, dancers and acrobats, that a musical director and an aquatic director are carried, that three men are constantly working on their clothing and sorting it out, and that three special electricians and four scene men are carried constantly, to insure correct settings. It is a big, big, pleasing act, and one wholly unlike any other ever produced here. The great impression never leaves one. The story, which many of the many statues, the shooting fountain in the centre of the enchanted pool, the seductive music, the whole atmosphere, in fact, seems charged with enchantment. Seven other acts surround it including Claude & Fanny Usher, Irene Myers & Co., Al. Carleton, the Labrakans, the Pearl & Roth and the Pathe weekly. Good seats may be secured in advance for all performances. Phone 28.

Merrimack Square Theatre

The thousands of people who have read William C. deMille's great book, "The Woman," will make doubly sure that they see it produced in play form this week by The Players at the Merrimack Square theatre. The hundreds who haven't have no doubt by this time heard such excellent reports regarding its merits that they too will want to see it. In fact everyone partial to a play with a theme that is entirely novel in conception and treatment and an interest that starts at the size of the curtain and never ceases until its final drop should witness it. Produced on a scale of elaborateness seldom seen in a popular priced stock show and with each and every member of the company "fit" their part which is another rarity as regards presentations by stock companies. This play is by far the best offering in which the company has yet been seen. Then there are the many pictures. These are shown between the acts and for an hour before the play starts and include a comedy reel that is good, two real dramas which hold much interest and others. Despite the fact that the management is paying

NO INFANTILE PARALYSIS

In Lowell at the Present Time

State Medical Inspector Simpson of this city is keeping watch of all cases of infantile paralysis reported in Lawrence and is spending considerable of his time in that city. According to the records at the office of the local board of health there isn't a single case of infantile paralysis in this city.

A number of cases have been reported in Lawrence and every precaution is being taken to guard against an epidemic of the disease and every case thus far reported has been isolated.

Alderman Todd, of Lawrence, said last evening that in one instance the child who is now afflicted with the disease was taken ill in July.

The Lawrence authorities are investigating the conditions surrounding all babies in regard to the sanitary conditions. The investigation is being made as the result of the infant epidemic, as it is thought that germs bred at unsanitary stables may be one of the causes of the spread of the disease. One more case was reported to the Lawrence board of health yesterday bringing the total number of cases up to seven.

DUCHESS AVOIDED SUGAR AND STORK BROUGHT A BOY

DUCHESS OF ROXBURGHE

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Parents the world over are interested in the eugenic birth of a baby boy to the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe. The old but vitally important question is revived, "Can parents predetermine the sex of a child?" In this case the duchess, who was formerly Miss May Golet, daughter of the late Ogden Golet, a New York multi-millionaire, wanted a boy heir to the 65,000 acre estate of the dukedom, one of the richest in Great Britain. It is reported that the duchess in 1909 went to Vienna and consulted Dr. Leopold Schenck, who was regarded as an authority on embryology. It is said that he told her that the principal thing to do in order to insure a male child was to avoid all food containing sugar. The duchess is reported to have followed the instructions of Dr. Schenck. This is the first child of the duchess, who has been married ten years. Some specialists ridicule Dr. Schenck's theory. At the time of May Golet's marriage her fortune was estimated at from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000. She made her debut in London in 1900 and has spent most of her life abroad. Her mother is a sister of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

the average yield harvested 1908-12. On the planted area, 2,435,000 acres, it is estimated the final total production will be about 29,000,000 bushels, compared with 25,000,000 bushels harvested last year, and 19,000,000 bushels harvested in 1911.

Hay—A preliminary estimate of the total production of hay places it at 63,000,000 tons, compared with 73,000,000 tons harvested last year and 55,000,000 tons harvested in 1911. The quality of the hay crop is estimated at 91.7 per cent., compared with 92.1 per cent. last year and 92.1 per cent., the average for the past ten years.

Apples—Condition, 47.7 per cent., of a normal, on September 1, compared with 52.2 per cent., on Aug. 1, 67.9 per cent., on Sept. 1, last year, and 54.1 per cent., the average condition on Sept. 1 for the past ten years.

FRATERNITY CONVENTION

To Be Assembled By Jesse Crook at Odd Fellows Temple This Month

The date for the convention of the fraternal societies of this city, which is to be held in Odd Fellows building under the auspices of Mr. Jesse D. Crook, has not yet been set, but it is believed that it will be held during the last week of this month. Several prominent speakers will be present and there will be open discussions on how to build up the fraternities in this city.

Nearly 100 organizations will be represented, according to the present plans and several new ideas will be brought before the delegates. It is the intention of Mr. Crook to have about three men present from each society and to have open discussion on fraternal work. It is believed that a committee will be appointed to keep in touch with the legislature and look after the interest of all societies. At the present time there is no fraternal organization to do this work. Mr. Crook states that insurance companies have introduced bills to injure the fraternities and many times they have done so because there were no fraternal representatives present to speak against the bills. He says the fraternities and insurance companies are competitors. The latter have legislative agents at the state house and the different organizations have made no effort to prevent them from helping to pass bills that have injured the fraternities. One exception was the passing of the Mobile law, which was later amended through the efforts of Fred Humphries and Albert Davis of this city.

Among the topics to be taken up at the convention are the following: "Medical Examination and Its Benefits," "How Best to Increase the Membership of a Society," "Lodge Entertainment," "The Mobile Law," "Legislation Affecting Fraternal Organizations," "Publicity" and "Saving of Delinquents to an Order."

RUN DOWN BY AUTO

Dedham Boy Was Killed Near Home

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Joseph Montague, a 10-year-old boy of Washington street, Dedham, was killed near his home last evening by being run down by an automobile owned by Albert M. Jennings of 256 Main street, Haverhill, and operated by his son, Horace N. Jennings.

Montague, who was a son of Ambrose M. Montague, was crossing the street, it is said. Mr. and Mrs. Jennings, their son and daughter, and three other women, were in the car on their way to Haverhill from Providence. After running down the boy the occupants of the automobile picked him up, took him to the police station and then called several physicians.

The boy was dead before medical aid arrived. The police questioned Horace Jennings and his father and after becoming convinced that the accident was unavoidable allowed the automobile party to go.

SALISBURY BEACH FIRE

the Cushing hotel, then to the Essex House, the railway, dance hall and roller coaster.

At the same time it spread in another direction to the transfer station. At this point the wind, which had been east, veered to the south and swept the fire directly to the beach, and it was no time before building after building went down in the path of the flames.

Notwithstanding the approaching twilight the beach was illuminated by an intense glare, the heat forcing even the fighters back and making approach to the buildings practically impossible. The fire now on both sides the main street sped towards the transfer station on one side and the postoffice on the other reducing every building to ashes. The blaze here was visible for twenty miles distance and the light on the sky after twilight could be seen much farther.

The fire turned at the transfer station, which was completely destroyed, went back and took a large number of stores along the board walk. In its turns and twists this fire was one of the freakiest seen in years.

The fire was about to attack Montmory dance hall, which had been protected by rain coats, overcoats, lead clothing, and everything else in that line which was soaked in sea water, weighted down with wet sand. This it was hoped, would prove a barrier to the solid wall of flame which bore down upon the dance hall.

The big dance hall was finally saved. The other was destroyed.

In the North End

It had been hoped to save this section. Cottage after cottage caught fire, the flames darting back and forth in a perfect maze, making such a thing as a systematized fighting out of the question.

In a moment the whole place was a seething furnace. The beach life savers turned out on a fire call and formed a rail line on the beach. The unique feature of this fire was the fact that sand proved more efficacious than water, and the final stopping of the flames was largely due to the wet sand. At an early period of the fire the church bells tolled out a fire signal. By this time everybody on the beach was trying in some way to fight the fire, but their efforts being disorganized proved fruitless.

Outside Aid Called For

The town officials then telephoned for outside aid, calling first upon Newburyport. Chief George F. Osborne of that city responded immediately with several pieces of apparatus, making a record run over the four-mile coast. By the time they arrived the fire was midway was ablaze. Realizing the futility of attempting to check the flames with the water facilities at hand, Chief Osborne advised calling the surrounding town for help. Portsmouth fire department sent over an automobile engine, but there was no water available for it, and the machine stood idle, the firemen turning to work with their hands until a position for the engine could be found within reach of the fire.

The Haverhill fire brigade arrived at 7 o'clock and immediately took station at the North End.

Dynamite is Used

When Chief Gordon reached the scene and took it in at a glance, he called for dynamite, and within a short time the dynamiting of the cottages had commenced.

The Drummond cottage was torn down by volunteers and then dynamite hurled into the dead cottage, and into Clinton Hall, making a gap in the path of the fire far more than a hundred feet, but this proved ineffectual and it was necessary to dynamite the Currier cottage.

Previous to these operations the fire had made a clean sweep of the South End as far as Chase's bungalow. This is located just below Hope chapel, where the fire was checked in its southern march after it had consumed some 200 buildings. From the centre along the South End there was an open space cleared out by fire some years ago for about an eighth of a mile, but the fire was able to jump the open area to a point in the cottages beyond.

Along the tracks running to the South End were the principal restaurants of the beach. 15 or a dozen, all of which were totally destroyed.

Shortly after the fire reached the Cushing hotel word spread along the boardwalk that Mildred Allen, the proprietor's daughter, was in her room on the top floor of the building and was trapped in by fire. Two volunteers, William McKean of Haverhill and Joseph Daly of Lawrence, two clerks at the hotel, fought their way through the smoke to the top floor but upon arriving there found the room vacant.

Overcome By Smoke

As they tried to make their way back to safety, Daly, blinded by smoke, fell downstairs, and while he lay there was overcome by the smoke. McKean reached the open end and then missed his companion. A searching party, immediately sent in, found Daly lying barely conscious on the floor.

Very few persons saved anything. The fire swept over the beach so rapidly that the saving of life was the only consideration. The beach down to the water's edge was piled high with bedding and some furniture. There were absolutely no lights, and no darkness descended early, women and children lay in the cold all night.

Two Women Rescued

During the fire many sought refuge in the pavilion at the beach centre, but at 2 o'clock this also caught fire and they were forced to seek what shelter they could under the starlight. Many of the men who had been at work during the day returned to the beach only to find their houses in ruins and their families stretched exhausted on the ground.

Patrolman Fred Collins of station 2, Cambridge who is stopping at the Fitzpatrick cottage, while working with the volunteers who were fighting the fire in the Hotel Leighton, came across the prostrate bodies of two women roomers on the second floor. They proved to be Mrs. J. L. Smith of Salem and Mrs. H. W. Tilton of Lynn. Mrs. Smith was carried to safety without any accident, but while talking out Mrs. Tilton the policeman was overcome with smoke and he, too, had to be rescued by the volunteers.

AN OVERCOAT YELL

I have been a tailor all my life. All I know is tailoring, and today I am recognized as a Boston institution, employing hundreds of Boston help, having the buying facilities of 15 stores. I am in a position to sell you as low as the ordinary ready-to-wear house charges the middle man, who in turn sells you.

Mr. Reader: I have been for years the moving spirit of the brilliantly successful Mitchell stores. My styles, ideas, my advertising, my window displays, my doorways, and merchandising methods are copied far and wide, and right here in Lowell, in the last few years you have seen new firms open up far a short while only to lose the pace and fall by the wayside.

I opened in New York city last spring, and on account of the crowds of customers who packed my store to the doors, it was necessary for me to put a policeman at the door to keep buyers out until those who were in had bought. The clothiers there say I can't last, if I give the people the values I am offering, but I have been in Boston for 15 years, seven years in Worcester, five years in Lowell and Springfield, eight years in Buffalo, N. Y., nine years in Providence, R. I., four years in Hartford, and each year my business shows an increase, and when some clothier casts reflection on Mitchell, ask him how much of an increase his business showed the last year, and then ask him how MITCHELL, THE TAILOR, shows such enormous gains. That's the answer. (Signed)

MITCHELL, the Tailor

CASH! CASH!!

For Spot Cash I Buy 160 Pieces of Rockville Overcoatings

Rockville overcoatings had a reputation before you ever heard of Mitchell, the Tailor. The fact that I sell them at low prices cannot hurt that reputation. It only adds to mine. That's why I offer them at the price. When you realize that these goods have always been too high in price for me to handle, you can see my position. Every ready-to-wear house that spends thousands of dollars advertising in the magazines sells this cloth at from $20 to $35. They use these on account of the guarantee that goes with the goods. If they fade or shine within one year, I will make a new coat free.

Fall and Winter Suitings. I walked around town last week and was surprised to see in windows soft woolly shaggy fabrics—they call them cassimeres—marked $15, $18, $20 and $25—cassimeres, which by their very structural nature can never hold the shape, soft woolly fabrics that never can give decent service or wear.

I tell you I can clip these prices in halves, and then sell you a double and twisted all wool worsted suiting. An all-wool worsted will hold its shape, will give you service and wear. You may complain after a year or so that worsteds wear shiny. It does—it lasts long enough to get shiny. Cassimeres never shine. They don't last long enough. Cassimeres wear thread-bare in a few weeks or months because they are built and constructed like blotting paper. Worsteds are dearer than cassimeres. But I won't handle cassimeres. I tell you I am giving the people the biggest run in the country for the money when custom clothing is in question.

shouting lustily for someone to assist in the rescue of her 3-year-old son, Arthur, who was hemmed in by flames. Hurley made a daring dash into the smoke-filled rooms and soon emerged with the boy safe from all harm.

Latter while attempting to extinguish a blaze on the roof of the Leighton with the aid of blankets, Hurley slipped and fell 20 feet to the roof of the Newark, next door. He was stunned and bruised, but after receiving medical assistance on the beach returned to the fire lines again.

Cripple Taken From Flames

Mrs. George C. Morse, aged 60, a cripple, and the wife of George C. Morse of Haverhill, was rescued just in the nick of time by Ernest Brodeur, aged 21, of Haverhill. Their cottage was already attacked and the inmates had fled. Brodeur and his mother, who lived up stairs, were watching the blazing horizon. Suddenly Mrs. Brodeur asked: "Where is Mrs. Morse?" In an instant Ernest had dashed into the building, knocked at the door of the aged woman and had assisted her out. She had been asleep and was ignorant of the fire. She had barely left the steps when the cottage caught fire and in a few moments was leveled to the ground. Her husband, coming home shortly after, found his home burned to the ground.

Vandals Looted Property

Vandals found excellent opportunity to ply their unlawful trade, taking advantage of unprotected women who eagerly sought their proffered assistance. In many cases it was reported that unscrupulous persons went from cottage to cottage offering to assist in the saving of valuables and many persons who relied on them suffered.

All over the beach cash registers and safes were scattered hither and thither, and in many instances young men armed with pieces of iron and shovels were noted trying to loot these.

During the height of the fire at the Cushing a soda water tank shot skyward, following a tremendous report, and when found it had landed across

Pale people are always nervous. There is a closer connection between blood and nerves than most people know for all the nourishment that the nerves receive reaches them through the blood. the square near the Associates' building, half buried in the sand. During the fire there were numerous long, blue tongues of flame darted skyward from severed gas pipes.

Sightseers Hamper Firemen

The fire department was hampered in its approach to the beach by automobiles and carriages lined up for half a mile on the beach road, which is the main thoroughfare, that must be passed before reaching the scene of the fire. Spectators lined the beach by the thousands, and when the dynamiters commenced scores of persons in their haste to get away from the scene, rushed into the surf knee-deep in their confusion.

Walter Coulson of the Salisbury Beach association was in Boston when the fire broke out and immediately left for the beach in an automobile. One of the way his machine broke down and he lost many valuable minutes, but arrived around 8 o'clock and went to his cottage at the North End.

He is very unpopular with the cottagers as representing the triumvirate that took over the property of many cottagers when their leases ran out. It was because of these proceedings that a fire was recently predicted. It was the threats of fire that caused the syndicate to place heavy insurance on 500 buildings on the beach within the last month. About the first of August the building in which the postoffice was located was taken over. It is believed that Coulson would be glad that the state would take the beach for a reservation and pay him the valuation which has been placed upon it by himself, the assessors and those who have purchased lots.

INJUNCTION

Cemetery commissioners of Dracut, Walter F. Thissell of Lowell in said county trustee under the will of Warren Fox, late of said Lowell, deceased, Wilford D. Gray of Woburn, in said county, and Warren W. Fox of said Dracut as they are administrators of the estate of Sarah E. Parker, late of said Dracut, deceased, vs. city of Lowell and Andrew G. Stiles, treasurer and collector of taxes for said city of Lowell, this day filed in said office, where in the said complaints, among other things, pray that a writ of injunction issue against the said respondents, their agents, attorneys and counsel, to enjoin and restrain the said respondents and the persons before-named, and each and every one of them from proceeding further with the sale of Hillside cemetery, advertised in the newspapers of Lowell to be sold at public auction at the office of the collector, at city hall, in said Lowell, on Wednesday, Sept. 17, 1913, at ten o'clock a. m. All of which is more fully set forth in said bill of complaint.

It is ordered, that the complainant notify the respondents to appear before said court in equity session, first division, at the court house in Boston, in the county of Suffolk, on Monday, the 15th day of September at 10 o'clock a. m. by causing an attested copy of this order to be served upon said respondents forthwith that they may then and there show cause, if any there be, why such injunction should not be granted. By the court sitting in Boston.

(Signed) Wm. C. Dillingham, Clerk.

A true copy Attest. (Signed) Geo. H. Stiles, Deputy Sheriff.

Injunction Served Today

The writ was served on City Treas. A. G. Stiles this morning and it is generally admitted that the case is more or less complicated. The city of Lowell annexed the town of Dracut, May 18, 1874. It appears, retained ownership of the cemetery in question.

The town of Dracut has always taken care of the cemetery and inasmuch as the town owns it the city did not hesitate to assess the town for the sidewalk which was built in 1911. At its town meeting in March the town of Dracut, it was stated today, appropriated the sum of $358.13 for the cemetery sidewalk assessment.

The city treasurer sent the usual formal legal demand to George H. Stevens, treasurer for the town of Dracut, and in view of the fact that no notice was aken of the demand, the Hillside cemetery was included in the collector's notice of sale.

Notables Buried There

The cemetery is one of the oldest in this section. John W. Peabody of Dracut, one of the cemetery commissioners of the town, says a portion of the cemetery was deeded to the town of Dracut at least 125 years ago. He said no rights in the cemetery had been ceded to Lowell when that portion of the cemetery was annexed. The Dracut cemetery commissioners, he said, paid this year to keep the grass cut in the cemetery.

The cemetery is partly public and partly private. In the private portion are buried Gen. and Mrs. B. F. Butler and a son, Ben Israel, Gen. Butler's son, Capt. John Butler, Col. J. M. G. Parker, B. F. Webster, Prentiss Webster and a number of the older residents of Dracut.

Graves of Soldiers

In the public portion are buried soldiers of the American Revolution and the civil war. The cemetery is today entirely within the limits of Lowell, but it has never been ceded to the city.

Before the sidewalk now in controversy was laid a hearing was granted by the committee on streets of the city council of 1911. It is understood there were remonstrances by lot owners and others, but that the committee recommended its construction and that the city council endorsed the recommendation.

POLICE COURT SESSION

Husband in Court for Non Support

One of the most pitiful examples of what a shiftless drunkard will do to escape the necessity of working that the local police court has ever witnessed was presented this morning when the case of Thomas J. Brown was called for trial.

Brown is a middle aged man with a physique which could never be called frail. A stubble of beard overshadowed a face upon which sat an expression of personal fear for himself alone as he listened to the prattle of his little baby girl and heard his wife testify that she had been supporting him as well as their child for the past five weeks. Even the stolid police court officers showed their disgust as the defendant tried to break down his wife's testimony.

The patient woman had said nothing to the police when her husband absconded out only a few weeks ago and child. When Brown finally came home one day, however, and stole the carefully hoarded up earnings, which his wife had worked so hard to earn and had been saving for additional comforts for their baby, the mother fainted at last.

Her tale was listened to at the police station and a warrant immediately gotten out for Brown's arrest. The prisoner did not seem to feel very badly about his actions except as they interfered with his own freedom.

During the trial of her father this morning the little child ran around the court room with her mother's hand bag clutched tightly in one chubby fist. In fact the little tot approached the dock once wherein the father was anxiously watching every expression that flitted across the countenance of the court.

Judge Enright cast a contemptuous glance in the direction of the prisoner as he ordered the case to be continued until next Saturday. Brown will spend the intervening time in a cell at the jail but it is very doubtful if even this will have a good effect upon him.

On his wife's petition Brown was paroled out only a few weeks ago and his non-appreciative attitude toward her will doubtless land him there again. His bail was fixed at $200.

Two more boys were rounded up by Officer O'Sullivan on a complaint charging them with being present at a crap game last Sunday afternoon. Judge Enright, in speaking of the case, remarked that he wished the penalty was greater for this misdemeanor, so that it might be stamped out in this city. Both were fined the maximum penalty, $5.

Bryan Sues for Chief

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 10.—Secretary of State and Mrs. William J. Bryan yesterday filed suit against Chief of Police F. C. Brown for $165 damages for the detention of a $352 diamond ring, identified as the property of Mrs. Bryan and held by the local police department.

The suit is set for trial October 6. The ring in question was either lost or stolen a year ago, and recovered by the police from a colored man in a local hotel.

MORGAN'S WITHDRAWAL

J. P. Morgan & Co. have notified the New Haven railroad of their intention of cancelling their contract as the fiscal agents of the road at the end of ninety days, and as is usual in all that concerns this railroad and its interests, the reason publicly assigned is not accepted at its face value by the people. Mr. Morgan speaking officially as head of the firm explains their attitude by saying that the action is taken so that the new administration may have a free hand in the financial affairs of the railroad and implies no hostility towards it or its new management. He further states that the road may renew its contract whenever it so pleases.

There is a persistent rumor, however, that the Morgan firm has resolved to withdraw from further financing of the New Haven because of the severe and continued criticism of the financial policy of the road. Following the numerous accidents, loss of the stock values or any policy that failed to receive general approval, the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. received not a little share of the blame, and though this may not be the reason for their resolve to withdraw from identification with the road, there is no doubt that Mr. Morgan and his associates resent the attitude of the public. Still so long as criticism of the New Haven railroad and its management continues, so long will criticism of its financial management continue, though it is doubtful if its financial condition is as much in need of constructive up-building as its physical property.

At the present time it cannot be stated definitely whether the New Haven will renew its contract with the Morgan firm or not, and until that is known one may accept the published explanation of Morgan or that of rumor without being able to establish the authenticity of either. If the contract is renewed it is probable that there will be some arrangement by which the financial backers will offset any apparent responsibility for conditions over which they have no control. They must be rather tired of being blamed for rear-end collisions or poor equipment as much as for the unwise schemes of expansion and monopoly that grew too heavy for the shoulders of President Mellen. If the railroad does not renew its financial contract with the firm of Morgan & Co. the people who ascribe other than the officially published reasons for the coming separation of interests may justify their attitude.

Whether the contract is renewed or not, the future of the New Haven railroad will not necessarily be affected by that fact alone. If the Morgan firm is responsible for all the unsatisfactory activities of the railroad in the past or if its future plans are directly at variance with the best interests of the business of this region or New England stockholders, it shall be powerless to carry out its schemes against the demonstrated power of an adverse public opinion. The New Haven railroad is at present confused and unsatisfactory financially and physically but nevertheless it is a railroad that has an almost positive monopoly of the business of one of the richest sections of the country, and under judicious management it is sure to prosper. The confidence of the public is more desirable to the road than the financial backing of the house of Morgan or the presidency of Mr. Mellen.

COMPULSORY VOTING

David L. Walsh touches a sore spot when he makes compulsory voting one of the reforms on which he bases his candidacy for governor. It is not a pleasant reflection that where government is so ready to the hands of the people and dependent on them, a law to make voting compulsory should be even hinted at, but he who would ignore the absolute disregard for the duties and privileges of citizenship that obtains among hundreds and thousands of our citizens cannot remedy the defect by optimism or a refusal to view this danger to our institutions squarely. A consciousness of the absolute duty of each and every citizen to vote intelligently is one of the greatest tools of the times, and if Mr. Walsh has not the proper idea of bringing the people back to a realization of their duties and their obligation, he is not to be thanked for picking it up in the contest for the governorship. The more widely the matter is discussed the greater the good, although in reality no law can compel a man to vote under the secret ballot.

Intelligent opposition to the principle of compulsory voting must be based on its inherent principle rather than on any effect it may have or is alleged to have by those who do not favor it. As Mr. Walsh says, we compel a man to serve on a jury regardless of his feelings in the matter and without asking him whether he votes or not, and the administration of law and justice does not suffer as a consequence. Any reasonable man can find a sensible reason why he should favor one candidate for office rather than his opponent or opponents and there are few so childish as to run against their reason and common sense because of being obliged to go to the polls or pay a penalty for refusal.

BIRD LOVERS REJOICE

The senate democratic caucus has rejected the amendment to the tariff bill permitting the plumage of wild birds to be imported into this country and bird lovers and all who favor the conservation of wild life may well rejoice. As it passed the house the bill prohibited the importation of such plumage except for educational and scientific purposes. Later as the result of influences brought to bear by strong millinery interests the senate committee changed the clause in a manner that would have nullified its effect, but luckily it has now been restored to its original form and in all probability will become law as it stands. The clause was inserted in the tariff bill at first owing to the efforts of the Audubon society and many similar organizations.

The government of this country in passing the McLean bill which protects wild birds while migrating within the limits of the United States and still more far reaching tariff clause sets an example worthy of imitation to every civilized country of the world. Woman can satisfy her vanity very well without wiping out one of the glories of the world in the process and we cannot afford to kill beauty and song for the sake of an Easter hat. The ladies will not lose one lot of their attractiveness but the entire world will gain in idealism, beauty and humanity.

ELECTION OF PETERS

A study of the election figures of the third congressional Maine district in which John A. Peters, republican, was elected Monday, reveals the primary fact of the collapse of the progressive party in the state of Maine. The narrowness of the margin of Mr. Peters over the democratic candidate cannot be accepted as a repudiation of democratic policies, and taking into consideration the local issues involved and some degree of treachery within the ranks of the democrats, it does not indicate any republican triumph in the national sense. The majority of the voters of the third district may not have been with Pattangall, but the returns do not prove that they are not with Wilson.

The vote for President Wilson last fall was 14,692 and Pattangall received 14,553, only about 100 less. It will, therefore, readily be seen that in this formerly overwhelmingly republican district the democrats have held their own and in fact have gained, taking into account the local defections in their ranks to which the defeat is ascribed. The election of a democrat from the third Maine district would still be considered remarkable but not a whit more so than the almost total collapse of the Maine progressives within such a short period.

ACQUITTAL OF JEROME

If there were no Thaw case there would have been no arrest of Mr. Jerome for the trivial offense of gambling in its slightest sense, while playing cards with some newspaper reporters, and Canada would have been spared some humiliation and the accusation of hypocrisy. No one believes that the arrest of Mr. Jerome was actuated by indignation at his act, and the virtuous citizen of Coatepook who subjected him to the indignity of a needless arrest and brief imprisonment neither added to the lustre of Canada for righteousness or to his own personal integrity. The judge who apologized to Mr. Jerome really voiced the sentiments of "every right minded man in Canada," but his apology was unnecessary, unless it was meant for the distinguished New York lawyer personally. New York state and the country in general saw merely the humorous side of the situation, and the famous case became more picturesque than ever because of its newest and most ludicrous aspect.

SHAKESPEARE POPULAR

Lists of plays for the coming season submitted to the press by the larger theatrical managers reveal the fact that a far larger number of companies than usual will devote the theatrical season to the plays of Shakespeare. As the men back of the coming Shakespearean productions are leaders in their profession and of the type to be swayed by financial rather than artistic considerations, their resolve may be taken as an indication that the plays of the bard of Avon are still popular. In these degenerate times of moving pictures and idiotic musical comedies it is a sign of hope that there are still among us people of sufficient numbers to make paying audiences to Hamlet, King Lear, Romeo and Juliet and Much Ado About Nothing. It may raise the standard of the culture of our prosaic generation in the eyes of our children's children.

Seen and Heard

A professor from Iowa went to England last summer and was introduced to a professor from one of the English universities. He welcomed the American, and said: "I met one of your colleagues last summer. We had another professor from Ohio here to visit us."

"Iowa, indeed? How very interesting. I am sure the other gentleman called it Ohio,"—Lippincott's.

A neuro porter in a barber shop made a speech one night at his colored men's club. It was quite an effort, creating a sensation among his brethren on account of the number of big words it contained.

His employer heard of it, and the next day began twitting him when he saw him absorbed in a dictionary. "What are you doing, Sam?" he asked. "Looking up some more big words for another speech?"

"No, sah," he replied. "Tain't that. Ah's jes' translating the speech. Ah made his night."

Thomas W. Lawson, at a dinner in Boston, said of a far-famed financier: "He is all right at heart, but his outside is prickly, and you must handle him with great caution—as they handled the Tin Can gambler."

"A gambler of the Tin Can borrowed a sum from a money lender, and when the note fell due he said he could not settle."

"You must settle," shouted the money lender. "If you don't settle, I'll—"

"But the gambler, taking a revolver from his boot, pointed it at the money lender and said: 'If you don't settle, I'll let daylight—'

"And the money lender, after a moment's silent thought, crumpled the note into a ball, put it in his mouth, chewed vigorously, and then with a gulp swallowed the pulp morsel."

"That does save your life," said the gambler in a mollified tone, and the next day he had a streak of luck and paid the money lender in full."

The money lender was much pleased with his honesty, and when the gambler, a few days later, called and asked for a new loan, he was readily accommodated."

"The gambler having pocketed the new loan, at dawn, dipped a pen in the ink and selected a sheet of paper whereon to write the usual acknowledgment. But the money lender hastily intervened."

"Hold on, my friend," he said, and he ran to a cupboard.

"Wait a minute, my friend. Would you mind writing for me this soft cracker?"—Illustrated Weekly Magazine.

The conversation in the lobby of Washington hotel turned to the great game of litigation and the bank roll required to properly play it, when Congressman Stevens of Nebraska recalled an incident.

One day, according to Congressman Stevens, a man entering the office of the lawyer, said that he had had a dispute with a neighbor over the shooting of a dog.

The lawyer listened to the details, which did not look very promising.

"Look here, Mr. Smith," he finally remarked to the would-be client. "I don't think it would pay either you or me to carry this to any length. Don't you think that it should be settled out of court?"

"Oh, yes," was the prompt rejoinder of Mr. Smith. "As a matter of fact I suggested it."

"I see," mused the lawyer, responded the lawyer. "The objection comes from the other side."

"Yes," said the client, just a little regretfully, "the bloomin' yap won't fight."

This one was told at a recent social by Congressman William A. Obfield of Arkansas, when the conversation turned to peculiar cases at law.

stand he asked him what damage had been done to the bird.

"My neighbor caught the chicken in his garden," answered the plaintiff, "and wrung its neck."

"I see," returned the judge. "What was the chicken worth alive?"

"It was worth 75 cents," answered the plaintiff.

"What was it worth dead?" questioned the judge.

"Seventy-five cents," replied the plaintiff.

"I fail to see where any appreciable damage was done," said the judge. "The case is dismissed."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

EDITORIAL COMMENT
Airships and Guns
Boston Herald: A good deal has been said as to the ability of the coming navies of the air to keep out of range of guns on the earth. It has been contended that airplanes could safely do scouting in time of war at a height of 5000 feet. When rising higher than that they would be out of the difficulty of observation, as well as of sustained navigation. Now we are to have a gun that will send an immense shell to six times the height at which the airplanes were to scout safely above battlefields. Those who said that there would be no safety there are right.

Maine Election
Boston Post: The vote for E. M. Lawrence, candidate of the progressives, is a tribute, so far as it goes, to the spectacular popularity of Roosevelt. The vote for W. R. Pattangall is the voice of the people who are not so much interested by political vagaries, but who stand for essentials. The vote for J. A. Peters

IN TORTURE WITH TERRIBLE ERUPTION
Horribly Itching Pimples. Scratched. Tilt Bled. Thoroughly Miserable. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trouble Disappeared.

Watkins Park, Edgewater-on-the-Hudson, N. J.: "About two years ago I had a terrible breaking out of horridly itching pimples all over my stomach and upper part of my legs. I was in torture and scratched till I bled and could only sleep fitfully at night and was so glad to see the day dawn. I was feverish and thoroughly miserable. The reddish pimples had got a head on them like smallpox eruptions. I rubbed them with a rough cloth, they itched so. They bled together and made sores about the size of a nickel and scabbed over. My clothing irritated the sores so that I put a damp handkerchief next to them. Some said it was the itch and others the humor."

"I took several treatments but got no relief. I was suffering for over six weeks when I began with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed myself with Cuticura Soap and bathed every night and when I had dried myself I rubbed the Cuticura Ointment thoroughly into my most afflicted part by the end of a week the whole trouble had disappeared and the old skin brushed off. I have not had a sign of a spot on my body since." (Signed) O. W. Charles, Nov. 9, 1913.

Cuticura Soap 25c and Cuticura Ointment 50c are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address: Free-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Hard-Worked

Fall River Globe: Secretary Bryan is working harder to make both ends meet than the average man with a much smaller income would care to. His days are spent at his desk in the state department which he leaves to fill his Chautauqua engagements and after having delivered his lecture he takes the stage back to Washington. It would seem as though in justice to himself that he either ought not to have so many irons in the fire at one time or that he get another job that would allow him more leisure.

Rain
Lowell Sun: When the poet wrote of "the low beginnings of content" perhaps he meant the sound of the rain on the roof. Even if you had a field of grain laid out flat to be spoiled by the wet you couldn't resist that feeling of sleepy comfort that comes with the first musical drops of the shower on the slantings over the attic.

Steel Cars
Nashua Telegraph: For the last three years the Pullman company has not built a single wooden car and it has been largely refitting its old cars with steel under frames and ends. Unfortunately it could not effect a complete replacement in so short a time and the extraordinary demands of the summer season required the use of the old cars destroyed in the wreck at North Haven. But the Pullman company and American railroads generally are to be credited with pressing steel substitution for some years back while the New York and New Haven stands in disreputable contrast. Now a uniform and highly expensive replacement of wooden stock with steel cars may justly be expected.

Washing Up
Manchester Mirror: The last days of vacation are preliminary to a general period of boy-cleaning. The new clothes purchased at this season give the youngster some slight pleasure, which is more than offset by the certainty of scrubbing to come. The prospective regular washings and hair brushings perhaps seem even more harassing to the little barbarians than the toll of the schoolroom.

Schedule R
Boston Democrat: President Wood of the American Woolen company naturally feels that he has approved schedule T, as it is written in the pending tariff bill. He says nobody can have any definite opinion about it till the bill passes conference and is approved by the president. When it is law, his company and other woolen manufacturers will do their best to operate their machinery no matter what the tariff rates may be.

San Francisco Women
Providence Tribune: It is worth noting that the new women voters of San Francisco are coming in for a large share of the credit for the overwhelming vote in favor of improved street car service, through municipal ownership. If necessary, "The San Francisco Star" says that the victory was "largely the result of their unflinching, unselfish and intelligent effort."

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL
Court Merrimack, H. F. of A. met in regular session last night with Chief Ranger George R. O'Neill in the chair. Arrangements are being made for a smoke talk after the next meeting and some good speakers will be secured for that date. A report was read by John Sharkey, delegate to the supreme court convention held in Atlantic City last month. The drawing for prizes at the outing held recently resulted as follows: First prize, Joe of coal, J. J. Richardson, 11 Vino street, Marlboro; second prize, gas lamp, John Doyle, 276 Adams street; third prize, pair of shoes, Thomas Kelley, 56 Cambridge street; fourth prize, umbrella, Patrick McInerney, 159 Broadway; fifth prize, fountain pen, James O'Neill, 422 Fletcher street.

Samuel H. Hines Lodge
P. C. Joseph Harris, of Black Prince lodge, 48, who was recently appointed deputy over Hines lodge, was present at the regular meeting of the Samuel H. Hines lodge last night. He spoke briefly on the work of the order and urged the members to work hard to build up their society. Remarks were made by the following: C. C. James, McInerney, P. C. Gordon, Brothers Brimmon, Parker, Downes and others. After the business refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

DRACUT HOUSES ROBBED
Burglars at the Peter H Donohoe Farm

The Peter H. Donohoe farm, Dracut, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Maguire and family, as well as the home of Mr. and Mrs. Parker Wiggin, neighbors, were visited by daring robbers Monday. At the former place the intruders got away with a lady's gold watch and chain and $10 in cash, but in the other house it seems they found nothing that suited them, so they departed after emptying the contents of bureau drawers on the floor.

The theft was committed in the early hours. Mrs. Maguire was awakened by a strange noise in the house. She roused her husband and the two made an investigation and arrived in another room in time to see two men leap through a window. A telephone call was sent to the police station and a few minutes later the limousine loaded with blue coats arrived on the scene, but inasmuch as the officers of the law did not have the slightest clue to work on, the robbers are still at large.

Inspects Charlestown Navy Yard
BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday inspected the Charlestown navy yard, which naval officials have declared unfit for use by marines. He left for Washington late yesterday afternoon. An appropriation of $100,000 was made by congress for replacing the barracks, which was held up by Secretary Daniels pending an investigation by the department.

Bullet in His Temple
BOSTON, Sept. 10.—A man who gave the name of E. F. Tobie of New York, and who is thought to have spent his time here for passage to Boston, shot himself while aboard the steamer, Massachusetts, which arrived here from New York yesterday. When the boat docked Tobie was found lying in his berth with a bullet in his temple. He died later at a hospital. A search of his clothes failed to reveal his identity.

The members of the school committee are facing a very difficult problem in the accommodating of all the pupils of the various schools. By transferring the fifth grade pupils from the Princeton to the Highland school, they incurred the dissatisfaction of a large number of the parents. The action was taken by the committee as the most expedient of any that has been suggested.

THE THAW CASE

hour a free agent in America traveling in an automobile with a number of American reporters.

The Mattawan fugitive was dropped over the border by the Canadian authorities into Vermont.

Alone, dazed and free, he did not know what to do. The newspaper men following him took him into their car and traveled with him. They passed from Vermont into New Hampshire. As the car progressed the reporters noted Thaw's movements.

The situation in which Harry Thaw found himself today was by far the most extraordinary that has marked the progress of his sensational case since he fled from the Mattawan insane asylum Aug. 17. Believing this morning that he was being kidnapped, he resisted forcibly his removal from Coaticook only to find that the outcome of his quick dash in an automobile to American territory was to bring him unexpected freedom and place him in the hands of the men who up to the present time had devoted their energies to the repatriation of his case. Thaw was dazed at the suddenness of the events of the morning; without his array of legal counsel, he did not know where to turn for advice. After brief consultation with the newspaper men the automobile sped on to Averill.

Here a brief stop was made and by ten o'clock he had crossed the Vermont line into New Hampshire.

Thaw Was Free Agent
Inasmuch as Thaw was a free agent his moves depended upon his own volition. It was the duty of the newspaper reporters to go where Thaw went.

It has been learned here that the New York authorities regarded Thaw as their ward; this impression being based on the fact that he had escaped from a state asylum for the criminal insane. Their purposes were, immediately Thaw was free of the legal entanglements resulting from his apprehension in Canada to rush him back into New York and again place him in Mattawan. They advanced the claim that they had the same right to do so as the state of New York would have to take into his custody a minor child.

It is believed here, further, that the New York authorities did not expect any difficulty in New Hampshire or Vermont as the case might be in disposing of Thaw in this manner. These circumstances, taken together, led to the charge of the Thaw abductors and his counsel that the Canadian immigration authorities were party to the plans of New York state.

gration authorities were party to the plans of New York state.

New York Expects Cooperation
The fact that no sooner had the news of Thaw's presence in Vermont been learned in Albany than acting Governor Glynn requested the governors of Vermont and New Hampshire to arrest Thaw and hold him, tends color to the idea that New York expects co-operation from the authorities of the two states.

It is believed in Coaticook that with William F. Jerome out of the way and with the Mattawan officials relaxing their vigilance, that the Canadian authorities seized this opportunity to find an easy way out of a complex situation. Mr. Jerome left here Monday ostensibly for Albany in an automobile. This morning, however, he was at Manchester, N.H., in the southern part of the state and about 150 miles from the point where Thaw was liberated by the Canadian officers.

Orders to Deport Thaw
Armed with written orders to deport Thaw, issued by C. J. Doherty, acting minister of the interior at Ottawa, E. Blake Robertson, assistant superintendent of immigration, was unheralded to Coaticook last night. He told no one of his plans except subordinates necessary to aid in executing them and two Dominion policemen. Accompanied by his subordinates and the two policemen, Robertson went to Thaw's quarters in the detention pen shortly before eight o'clock this morning. They found Thaw fed and dressed and about to start on with the duties of the day. Robertson, the spokesman for the group, told Thaw that he had orders to deport him to Vermont.

Dash For Border
Thaw could not have been more surprised had he been told he was set entirely free. Before the fugitive could reply Robertson ordered him to get ready at once for the trip, adding that an auto was waiting for the dash for the border.

Thaw's surprise changed to fury in a twinkling. He refused to go and picking up a bottle hurled it at Robertson's head. The missile went wide of its target, crashed through a window and broke on the roadway outside. Robertson and his men then grabbed the prisoner about the shoulders and forcibly pushed him from the room. As Thaw was thus hurried down the stairs, the auto he kicked and fought his captors like a wildcat, screaming that he was being kidnapped. Robertson sought to quiet him with assurances that the proceedings were entirely regular and that his cries were futile. Two Dominion policemen acted actively in bundling Thaw into the automobile. With the prisoner safe, the entire party, policemen and all entered the car and were whirled away to the border.

Many Watched Struggle
A knot of spectators gathered quickly outside the building and watched the struggle. Except for the principals, they were the only persons in Coaticook who knew what was going on. None of the lawyers here representing New York state were notified of the plan to deport Thaw and none of Thaw's lawyers had an inkling of what was in the air. They were dumbfounded when they learned that what had happened.

Townsmen, unimpressed by the indignation which the news became general and sought Hector Verret, of counsel for New York state, for an explanation. Mr. Verret had none to offer. Neither he nor Mr. Jerome, he said, had been told of the deportation plan. Neither had any part in it, he declared.

Thaw was 15 minutes away, well on the road to the international line before the reporters learned what had happened. They found Thaw in the car and whirled away after him. He crossed the line into Norton Mills at 7:55. When he was well within the state the immigration officers stopped their car, bade him goodbye and good luck and drove back home.

THAW FOUGHT LIKE MADMAN WHEN IMMIGRATION OFFICERS SEIZED HIM

COATICOOK, Sept. 10.—Shrieking and fighting like a mad man, Harry K. Thaw was rushed from his quarters here by immigration officers at 8 o'clock this morning and carried into a waiting automobile which bore him across the Vermont border.

On his way to the automobile Thaw shouted at the top of his voice that he was being kidnapped and immigration officers sought to quiet him with assurances that such was not the case. Notwithstanding, he fought like a wildcat and smashed a window with a bottle as the officers dragged him down the stairs.

The automobile carrying Harry Thaw crossed the Vermont border at 8:59 o'clock this morning.

THAW WAS SET FREE BY CANADIAN OFFICERS AFTER CROSSING LINE

AVERRILL, Vt., Sept. 10.—A large red touring car which rolled quietly into town at 10 o'clock this morning contained Harry K. Thaw, the fugitive from Mattawan.

Thaw had been released by the Canadian immigration authorities when the government automobile crossed the Vermont line at Norton Mills, four miles away and at this hour was an absolutely free man, as nobody representing the state of New York was in the state of Vermont was on hand to take him.

At Norton Mills Thaw left the automobile of the Canadian immigration authorities and climbed into the car of several newspaper correspondents who had accompanied him and made the journey to Averill. In his sudden departure was a surprise and that his plans were all in the air.

Thaw was a very much astonished man when the Canadian immigration officials told him at Norton Mills that he was free to go where he wished. When he got out of the Canadian auto he stood gazing helplessly around. Then the newspaper men who had followed him kindly offered him a room in their car. He gladly accepted the offer.

"This thing has been such a surprise to me, boys," he said, "that I don't know what I shall do."

THAW RACED INTO NEW HAMPSHIRE SHORTLY AFTER 10 O'CLOCK

BEECHERS FALLS, N. H., Sept. 10.—Racing across the top of Vermont in an automobile with the newspaper correspondents, Harry K. Thaw crossed the Connecticut river at 10:10 today and stopped for a while at West Stewartstown in New Hampshire.

Leaving Norton Mills, where he had been taken by Dominion immigration officials, Thaw and the correspondents' automobile and then proceeded to Averill, a small country village, where he had breakfast at the Inn.

Engaging another car, the Mattawan fugitive and the correspondents passed through Canaan and then crossed the river and entered New Hampshire.

Thaw's haste to leave Vermont was probably due to his knowledge that a warrant for his arrest was awaiting service in the state.

Thaw had no plans for the future. His deportation was a complete surprise to him and he was in a great state of excitement during his flight across the northern part of Vermont.

Up to the time he crossed the Connecticut river he kept to interfere with his flight had been taken.

Thaw knew his route perfectly, apparently having studied it in detail before leaving Mattawan. The last heard from him here he was returning south by the same road he took when he fled toward Canada.

NO ATTEMPT WAS MADE TO ARREST THAW AT STEWARTSTOWN, N. H.

STEWARTSTOWN, N. H., Sept. 10.—Thaw reached Stewartstown shortly after 10 o'clock. No attempt was made to arrest him here. He stood about the village square for about 15 minutes and then reentered his automobile without announcing his destination. About 11 o'clock he stopped at a farmhouse near Stewartstown and then continued his journey.

COLEBROOK, N. H. OFFICIALS SENT OUT IN ENDEAVOR TO CAPTURE THAW

COLEBROOK, N. H., Sept. 10.—Word reached here shortly before noon that Harry K. Thaw had passed through Clarksville an hour or two earlier and was headed towards northern Maine. Clarksville is to the north of West Stewartstown where Thaw and two newspaper companions entered New Hampshire.

The Coos county court is in session here and practically every local officer and deputy sheriff was sent out in an endeavor to apprehend the fugitive. It was believed that Thaw had passed through the Dixville Notch and was on the east slope of the Dixville mountains bound in the direction of Upton, Me.

Every road in and about Colebrook has been guarded and it was believed that Thaw's capture was a matter of a short time only.

It was reported from North Stratford that Thaw had returned into Canada but this report could not be confirmed and was generally disbelieved.

Attorney General Tuttle of New Hampshire who is in the court here had an extended telephone conference with William Travers Jerome this forenoon.

THAW WAS ARRESTED AT NOON TODAY NEAR COLEBROOK, N. H.

LANCASTER, N. H., Sept. 10.—Harry K. Thaw wandered about the hills of Coos county, New Hampshire, for three hours today after being thrust across the Canadian border at Norton Mills and was arrested by Sheriff Drew of Coos county at Little Schoolhouse, five miles from Colebrook just before noon.

Thaw made no resistance and was brought immediately to Colebrook. Thaw in his wanderings was accompanied by newspapermen. He did not know where to go. Leaving Norton Mills, he stopped for a few minutes at Averill, Vt., and leaving there doubled back into Canada and entered Vermont at Canaan, then crossed the Connecticut river at Stewartstown. No one attempted to detain him. No one attempted to detain him to strike a railroad and buy a through ticket to Detroit. Vainly he tried to get in connection with his lawyers at Montreal and failing in this he remained blind until detained by the sheriff. The sheriff had no warrant but held him as a fugitive from justice.

JEROME WAS ON WAY TO NORTH ADAMS, MASS. WHEN HE HEARD NEWS

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 10.—William Travers Jerome, New York's special representative in the Thaw case, learned unofficially of the deportation of Thaw from Canada an hour after the Mattawan fugitive had been put over the line into this state. Canadian officials, he said, had promised to notify him of any steps taken and he was awaiting official notification.

Jerome left Manchester at noon by automobile with North Adams, Mass., as his objective point. He planned to wait at North Adams until he received definite word as to Thaw's whereabouts and then proceeded on the first train. On his way to North Adams Mr. Jerome will stop at Bennington for information.

Fugitive From Justice
Before leaving Jerome held a long telephone conference with Attorney General Carmody of New York and requested the New York authorities to ask for Thaw's apprehension as a fugitive from justice. Jerome expressed much surprise that the Canadian authorities had not notified him of their intention to deport Thaw. He learned that notification was sent to authorities at Island pond but so late he said as to make it impossible for anyone to reach Norton Mills in time to meet Thaw. There were no trains and it was impossible to make the 60 mile run by automobile in time.

At Norton Mills Thaw left the automobile of the Canadian immigration authorities and climbed into the car of several newspaper correspondents who had accompanied him and made the journey to Averill. In his sudden departure was a surprise and that his plans were all in the air.

Thaw was a very much astonished man when the Canadian immigration officials told him at Norton Mills that he was free to go where he wished. When he got out of the Canadian auto he stood gazing helplessly around. Then the newspaper men who had followed him kindly offered him a room in their car. He gladly accepted the offer.

"This thing has been such a surprise to me, boys," he said, "that I don't know what I shall do."

THAW RACED INTO NEW HAMPSHIRE SHORTLY AFTER 10 O'CLOCK

BEECHERS FALLS, N. H., Sept. 10.—Racing across the top of Vermont in an automobile with the newspaper correspondents, Harry K. Thaw crossed the Connecticut river at 10:10 today and stopped for a while at West Stewartstown in New Hampshire.

Leaving Norton Mills, where he had been taken by Dominion immigration officials, Thaw and the correspondents' automobile and then proceeded to Averill, a small country village, where he had breakfast at the Inn.

Engaging another car, the Mattawan fugitive and the correspondents passed through Canaan and then crossed the river and entered New Hampshire.

Thaw's haste to leave Vermont was probably due to his knowledge that a warrant for his arrest was awaiting service in the state.

Thaw had no plans for the future. His deportation was a complete surprise to him and he was in a great state of excitement during his flight across the northern part of Vermont.

Up to the time he crossed the Connecticut river he kept to interfere with his flight had been taken.

Thaw knew his route perfectly, apparently having studied it in detail before leaving Mattawan. The last heard from him here he was returning south by the same road he took when he fled toward Canada.

NO ATTEMPT WAS MADE TO ARREST THAW AT STEWARTSTOWN, N. H.

STEWARTSTOWN, N. H., Sept. 10.—Thaw reached Stewartstown shortly after 10 o'clock. No attempt was made to arrest him here. He stood about the village square for about 15 minutes and then reentered his automobile without announcing his destination. About 11 o'clock he stopped at a farmhouse near Stewartstown and then continued his journey.

COLEBROOK, N. H. OFFICIALS SENT OUT IN ENDEAVOR TO CAPTURE THAW

COLEBROOK, N. H., Sept. 10.—Word reached here shortly before noon that Harry K. Thaw had passed through Clarksville an hour or two earlier and was headed towards northern Maine. Clarksville is to the north of West Stewartstown where Thaw and two newspaper companions entered New Hampshire.

The Coos county court is in session here and practically every local officer and deputy sheriff was sent out in an endeavor to apprehend the fugitive. It was believed that Thaw had passed through the Dixville Notch and was on the east slope of the Dixville mountains bound in the direction of Upton, Me.

Every road in and about Colebrook has been guarded and it was believed that Thaw's capture was a matter of a short time only.

It was reported from North Stratford that Thaw had returned into Canada but this report could not be confirmed and was generally disbelieved.

Attorney General Tuttle of New Hampshire who is in the court here had an extended telephone conference with William Travers Jerome this forenoon.

THAW WAS ARRESTED AT NOON TODAY NEAR COLEBROOK, N. H.

LANCASTER, N. H., Sept. 10.—Harry K. Thaw wandered about the hills of Coos county, New Hampshire, for three hours today after being thrust across the Canadian border at Norton Mills and was arrested by Sheriff Drew of Coos county at Little Schoolhouse, five miles from Colebrook just before noon.

Thaw made no resistance and was brought immediately to Colebrook. Thaw in his wanderings was accompanied by newspapermen. He did not know where to go. Leaving Norton Mills, he stopped for a few minutes at Averill, Vt., and leaving there doubled back into Canada and entered Vermont at Canaan, then crossed the Connecticut river at Stewartstown. No one attempted to detain him. No one attempted to detain him to strike a railroad and buy a through ticket to Detroit. Vainly he tried to get in connection with his lawyers at Montreal and failing in this he remained blind until detained by the sheriff. The sheriff had no warrant but held him as a fugitive from justice.

JEROME WAS ON WAY TO NORTH ADAMS, MASS. WHEN HE HEARD NEWS

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 10.—William Travers Jerome, New York's special representative in the Thaw case, learned unofficially of the deportation of Thaw from Canada an hour after the Mattawan fugitive had been put over the line into this state. Canadian officials, he said, had promised to notify him of any steps taken and he was awaiting official notification.

Jerome left Manchester at noon by automobile with North Adams, Mass., as his objective point. He planned to wait at North Adams until he received definite word as to Thaw's whereabouts and then proceeded on the first train. On his way to North Adams Mr. Jerome will stop at Bennington for information.

Fugitive From Justice
Before leaving Jerome held a long telephone conference with Attorney General Carmody of New York and requested the New York authorities to ask for Thaw's apprehension as a fugitive from justice. Jerome expressed much surprise that the Canadian authorities had not notified him of their intention to deport Thaw. He learned that notification was sent to authorities at Island pond but so late he said as to make it impossible for anyone to reach Norton Mills in time to meet Thaw. There were no trains and it was impossible to make the 60 mile run by automobile in time.

PLAN TO BRING THAW DIRECT TO MATTEAWAN IN AUTOMOBILE

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—It was learned here today that it was the plan of the New York state authorities to bring Harry Thaw direct to Mattawan in an automobile.

THAW WAS SET FREE BY CANADIAN OFFICERS AFTER CROSSING LINE

AVERRILL, Vt., Sept. 10.—A large red touring car which rolled quietly into town at 10 o'clock this morning contained Harry K. Thaw, the fugitive from Mattawan.

Thaw had been released by the Canadian immigration authorities when the government automobile crossed the Vermont line at Norton Mills, four miles away and at this hour was an absolutely free man, as nobody representing the state of New York was in the state of Vermont was on hand to take him.

At Norton Mills Thaw left the automobile of the Canadian immigration authorities and climbed into the car of several newspaper correspondents who had accompanied him and made the journey to Averill. In his sudden departure was a surprise and that his plans were all in the air.

NOT TO MARRY DIVORCED PERSONS

CARLISLE, Pa., Sept. 10.—Clergymen of this city have started a movement to line up the clergy of the entire state in opposition to the remarriage of divorced persons. The plan provides that ministers shall sign an agreement not to perform a marriage ceremony in a case where either one of the contracting parties has been divorced. A committee was appointed to prepare a petition to the local clerks of the courts requesting him to indicate on the marriage license furnished to ministers whether or not either of the parties contemplating matrimony had been divorced. This is not required by the state law now but can be done at the option of the marriage license clerk. The ministers will, however, probably provide an exception in the case of persons who can furnish to them under oath evidence, including a transcript on the order of court showing them to be the innocent parties.

BREAK LOWELL'S WINNING STREAK

Ten Inning Game Lost to Fall River by Score of 4-3—Magee Stars at Bat and in the Field

In a ten inning game, featured by empty stands and wintry blasts, which kept blowing across the field, Fall River finally broke the Lowell clubs winning streak by defeating them yesterday afternoon by the score of 4 to 3. In spite of the cold weather both teams played fast ball with a few exceptions.

Pete Wood was in the box for the local team and Woodman was his opponent. Wood was very wild while Woodman pitched great ball in the pinches.

Cargo opened the first with a single to right and went to third on two wild pitches. Devine walked. Umpire Rorty sent Devine to second and Cargo across the plate when Wood made a balk. Catterton walked. Devine and Catterton both advanced a base when Howard sacrificed. Mulvey fled out to Aubrey and DeGroot caught Martin's fly.

Lowell evened matters up in the second half. Clemens fled out to Howard but Miller singled to center. He stole second after Thomas fled to Devine. Magee lifted a fly to Martin which was dropped and Miller scored. Magee took second. Halstein fled to the plate. Halstein stole second but DeGroot sent a high fly to Campbell.

Score: Lowell 1, Fall River 1. Wood gave Campbell a pass in the second. After Connolly struck out, Woodman sent Campbell to third with a single to right but was thrown out when DeGroot threw to Aubrey. The latter threw out Cargo. Aubrey's liner with a great one hand stab. De struck out and Wood grounded out.

Score: Lowell 1, Fall River 1. Fall River went out in order in the third. Devine struck out. Catterton was a victim to Miller and Halstein and Howard grounded to Aubrey. Clemens was thrown out by Woodman. Miller fouled fly to Mulvey. Connolly took Thomas' foul fly.

GILBERT E. TOMLINSON IS NEW FISH IN THE SCHOOL OF "HUMAN PICKERELS," HE'S FAST

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—There is a new fish in the school of "human pickerels." He's Gilbert E. Tomlinson, a young Philadelphian. He won his spurs—or would it be proper to say his scales?—when he defeated the great Bud Goodwin for the $30 yard man in the country from a quarter of a mile up to West. Tomlinson, who is only a boy, did the half mile in 12 minutes 49 3-5 seconds. This was better than Goodwin's time of 12 minutes 33 seconds, but did not equal Goodwin's standing record for the distance of 12 minutes 42 seconds.

DIAMOND DAZZLES

Well, that pennant is now a certainty but it doesn't look any more certain now than it did a month ago. This will be the second pennant that Manager Gray has won for this city during the short time he has figured in New England league ball.

Umpire Rorty was in his glory yesterday. With a small attendance and a cold day which kept everyone in motion in order to keep warm Rorty pulled off some very ludicrous stunts. In announcing the double bill for tomorrow Red said: "The management has asked me to announce that all those present are earnestly requested to bring a few friends with them tomorrow."

Two more games with the Busters tomorrow. Burket will have his hands full now if he intends to land in second place with Portland going along at their present clip. Yes, and if Lawrence shows strong the Worcester team has a chance to finish in fourth position.

Red Rorty is just as funny as the diamond as he is in his umpire's regalia. Rorty and the writer boarded a car for the ball park yesterday and the former tendered the conductor a bill in payment for the fares. The conductor made a mistake in the change he handed back to Rorty and immediately called back by the red headed umpire. "You've short changed me," said Red and the conductor immediately made good. "Now you see the difference between you and me, do you Mr. Conductor?" said Red. "If you make a mistake you get a call down but if I make one I get mobbed." Many people were in the car who knew the popular umpire and he was given a great hand for his spontaneous wit.

Magee played a wonderful game in left field yesterday. All of his putouts were difficult but James was right on the job and chased them all with deadly results to the batters.

Halstein made a grand pickup in the second inning of Aubrey's poor throw. Aubrey had to travel to connect.

PELKEY QUILTS BURNS

Says Their Fight at Calgary Was "Frame Up"

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 10.—Arthur Pelkey, the heavyweight fighter, whose victory over Luther McCarty in a Calgary arena was followed by the latter's death, has parted company with Tommy Burns, his manager.

Immediately after cancelling his contract with Burns, Pelkey yesterday gave to a Portland sporting editor a signed "confession" in which he alleged that he and Burns faked their six round fight at Calgary, March 26 last. Pelkey charges that Burns took advantage of the fact that he was penniless and induced him to "frame up" the match, and that they rehearsed the battle night in a garage.

"I could have whipped him easily," says Pelkey in the statement, "but he wanted to make a good showing before his friends and he made me take two knockdowns to one for him. We rehearsed every night for a week in the garage of Burns' house and was got away with the fake all right, but the crookedness of it has been hurting me ever since. It was the only time I didn't fight on the square and I shall never do another crooked thing in my life."

Pelkey asserts that he has never had an offer to fight Jack Johnson in Paris. Telegrams pretending to convey invitations to clash with Johnson for large purses were cooked up, he said, for press agent purposes.

NOTED INVENTOR DEAD

Nathan P. Stevens Was a Former Lowell Man

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 10.—Nathan P. Stevens, noted as an inventor of locomotive machinery and pioneer in the electric lighting of Concord, died at his residence on Center street yesterday morning.

He was born Jan. 7, 1836, son of Andrew and Betsey Page Stevens, in Barnard, Vt. At the age of 14 he removed to Lowell, Mass., and started his career in the Lowell machine shop. Later he was employed in the shops of the Lowell & Boston and Old Colony railroads. When about 30 years old he came to Concord and entered the old Northern railroad shops.

His first notable invention was a locomotive cylinder packer, which revolutionized locomotive construction of that period and is still in general use in railroad shops. Other inventions in wide use are a cylinder boring bar, a locomotive valve seat planing machine and a cylinder facing machine, of which later he took up the manufacture when he severed his connection with the Northern railroad, and continued until advancing years compelled retirement.

In 1858, with the late A. S. Hammond, he established the first electric lighting plant in Concord and for about three years lighted the business portion of Maine street from the station in the basement of the Dow building on Bridge street. In 1860, the plant was sold to the Concord Gas Light company, but Mr. Stevens continued to operate it until the station on Bridge street was placed in operation.

He was quick to recognize the value of the new agent and was the first man in the country engaged in manufacture to establish a three-phase motor in his shop for power purposes. During his long career many other inventions were placed on the market, but the principal output of his shop was the machines noted above.

Mr. Stevens had five brothers, all of whom figured prominently in the railroad world as master mechanics of some of the largest systems in the country. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Benton O. Pillsbury.

Mrs. Thaw Is Ill

MONTREAL, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, mother of Harry K. Thaw, accompanied by a trained nurse and a maid, arrived here yesterday and immediately announced that she was too ill to receive visitors. Even counsel for her son was denied admittance to her suite at the hotel.

Steel Cars Saved Lives

NEW MADISON, O., Sept. 10.—An all steel train, probably saved a score of persons from being killed yesterday when the Pennsylvania flyer that left New York at 6.30 Monday night and due in St. Louis at 6.30 last evening, was derailed by a raised rail near Wythe's station. Four miles west of here yesterday and 35 persons were injured. Three, it is believed were fatally hurt and eighteen are in a hospital at Richmond, Ind.

NEW HAVEN ROAD NEEDS MONEY

Pres. Elliott Proposes to Spend $7,000,000 for Steel Cars and Other Improvements

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Declaring that the proposed $67,000,000 issue of debenture bonds is the only feasible and practicable method for raising money necessary for meeting the floating indebtedness, purchasing equipment and effecting necessary improvement on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, two railroad presidents, Howard Elliott of the New Haven, and Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania, addressed the Massachusetts public service commission yesterday in support of the New Haven's petition for permission to issue the bonds.

President Elliott set forth the needs of the New Haven and said that while a greater sum of money must be raised in the near future, the proposed issue is an emergency measure and is for immediate needs.

"I propose," he said, "to spend seven million dollars of this issue immediately for the safety of the travelling public. It will be spent for steel cars, revising our signal system and other like purposes."

The new president frankly admitted that he was ignorant of many things concerning the road. He had little knowledge of steamship and trolley subsidiary lines he said, and he was not familiar with the contract between the road's directors and the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., under which the Morgan firm was made the road's fiscal agent.

President Rea of the Pennsylvania railroad, appearing as a New Haven director, said that the present monetary conditions made the proposed issue necessary.

Hearing Resumed Today

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Reasons for the approval of the petition of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad for permission to issue $67,000,000 in percent and debenture bonds were again considered today by the Massachusetts public service commission at the resumption of the hearings begun yesterday. Railroad officials, attorneys and financial interests of this city and New York were so largely represented at the opening session yesterday that the room of the commission was uncomfortably crowded and Chairman Frederick J. Macdonald ordered today's session held in larger quarters at the state house.

It is expected that the hearing will continue throughout tomorrow. In addition to hearing further testimony in behalf of the road on the need of a debenture issue the commission will give an opportunity to opponents of the plan to present their objections.

Morgan & Co., of Connecticut, and Louis D. Brandeis of this city have entered an appearance in opposition to the granting of the petition but neither of them was heard yesterday (the time being occupied mainly with the statement of Howard Elliott, president of the New Haven and President Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania railroad, a director of the New Haven).

SAYS MURDERED GIRL IS DAUGHTER

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Peter Sternemann, the eccentric vendor of feathers who is sure that the dismembered body of a young woman found in the Hudson river several days ago is that of his daughter, Ella, was found by detectives today in the office for a morning newspaper and asked to explain the flood of incoherent letters he has directed at the district attorney and the keeper of the Hoboken morgue where the body lies.

His speech was almost as incoherent as his letters. Although he seemed to be entirely willing to help the authorities in their search, his rambling utterances gave them little aid. He explained that he had accompanied three men away from his home early yesterday to view the body at Hoboken but had decided after leaving that he was not equal to the ordeal without rest. So he postponed his visit to Hoboken and remained in CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—More than 20 persons were injured, three buildings were partly wrecked and windows within a radius of half a mile were shattered early today by the explosion of a bomb in the doorway of the private bank of Alexander Conforti, 912 South Halsted street. The explosion is believed by the police to be the work of blackmailers. Conforti admitted that a year ago he received three letters demanding $7000 but said he ignored them.

HEARING ON CHILD LABOR LAW

A Special Legislative Committee Will Come to Lowell on Sept. 18 to Investigate Complaints

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—Because of complaint of the effect of the new child labor law, particularly in the industrial centers of the state, the special committee of the house of representatives, appointed to investigate conditions surrounding the employment of women and children in Massachusetts, decided yesterday to make a tour of inspection in the leading textile centers for the purpose of securing first-hand information as to the attitude of employers toward the new statute.

Information has been brought to the committee by Representative John D. Sanborn of Lawrence and Representative Henry A. Smith, Jr. of Lowell, to the effect that hundreds of minors in their cities have been discharged because of the new law. Both feel that in their judgment the law would be beneficial to the children, but in view of the fact that many employers have absolutely refused to continue the employment of minors under the restrictions imposed, they felt it would be better to wipe the slate of the books.

Henry Smith, representing organized labor, said the situation means that employers have the power to insist that children shall either overwork or not work at all, and said the legislature must do something to do away with such a dangerous situation. He said it would be nothing more than fair if organized labor should demand of the next legislature that the same restrictions be placed upon the employment of women, that is, that they should not be employed for more than eight hours a day. In that way, he said, manufacturers would be compelled either to come down to an eight-hour day or close their factories.

After listening to the complaints of the Lawrence and Lowell representatives, the committee decided to visit Lowell on Thursday, Sept. 18, and to give a hearing, at which manufacturers will be invited to explain why they cannot arrange to continue the employment of minors in accordance with the statute.

On Tuesday next, at 11 o'clock, the committee will visit New Bedford for a similar hearing, and a hearing will be given in Lawrence, though no date has as yet been set.

Chairman Willard Howard of the state board of conciliation and arbitration told the committee of the working of the law under which the board operated and suggested that the board's efficiency might be increased if it had only arbitration work to do.

He explained that in its conciliation and mediation work the board is sometimes forced to take a position which may lead either of the parties to feel

HUB O'CONNORS RAKE ANCESTRY

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Boston's five hundred and more O'Connors, a clan which history says is descended from Roderick O'Connor, the last of the kings of Ireland, are raking over their ancestry today, not to discover exactly how many crowns have graced their ancestors' brows, but instead to discover if they are entitled to a share of the $75,000 estate reported left by a man named O'Connor who died recently in a western town.

Circulars have been sent by a firm of attorneys to every O'Connor in the Boston directory. The deceased, whose identity is kept a secret, is said to have left his home in Boston years ago to seek his fortune. He died recently, leaving an estate valued at $75,000, but nothing else. An eager canvass in hopes of an heir among themselves is now taking place in this famous clan.

Looking for Man Who Bought Tar Paper Meet New Conditions

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Inquiry into the murder mystery uncovered by the finding late last week of parts of the dismembered body of an unidentified girl along the New Jersey shore of the Hudson river centered yesterday in the upper west side section of this city, where it has been found the pillow-slip wrapped about one part of the body was purchased. From a druggist whose shop is directly opposite the furniture establishment where the pillow-slip was bought, it was learned that a man in his shirt sleeves and apparently greatly excited had purchased two sheets of tar paper similar to that with which parts of the torso were covered.

This development caused the detective bureau to work on the theory that the murder was committed in the vicinity in question and a thorough search of the vicinity is being made for possible further clues.

PANIC FOLLOWS CRASH

Six Were Hurt When Car Struck Auto

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Six persons were hurt and many were shaken up when a trolley car collided with a heavily laden automobile milk truck at the corner of Centre and Main streets, Malden, last evening. The car was crowded, most of the passengers being women. Following the crash there was a rush for the doors and a panic ensued.

The driver of the automobile truck, Ernest W. Carey, and his four assistants were thrown to the ground. Mrs. Louis C. Beckwith of 19 Forest street, Malden, a passenger on the car, was badly shaken up and suffered from hysteria. She was removed to a drug store and later sent home.

The car was inbound from Lebanon street and struck the automobile heavily on the side. The cans and bottles of milk were scattered in all directions, and as the passengers fled from the car they waded through rivulets of milk in the street.

The side of the automobile was demolished, and the driver, Ernest W. Carey, of 8 Main street, Chelmsford, was badly bruised about the face. Three other men, including the foreman of the gang, were held by the police in connection with the shooting.

WHITE SLAVERY CHARGE

German Marine Dirigible Was Wrecked by Hurricane and Fell Into the North Sea

HELGOLAND, North Sea, Sept. 10.—Torpedo boat destroyers with their searchlights flashing over the dark waters remained all night at the scene of yesterday's airship catastrophe in which 14 officers and men but of a crew of 21 perished when the German marine dirigible, Zeppelin II, while flying from the German coast to this island was wrecked in a hurricane. No further airmen, living or dead, were discovered today. Thirteen corpses, including those of Captain Metzger, chief of the naval airship service, Captain Hango, commander of the wrecked dirigible and Lieut. Baron von Maltzen and the engineer officer, Weber, undoubtedly are confined in the cabin of the airship which lies at the bottom of one of the deepest parts of the North Sea. The fourteenth man was picked up by boats launched from the destroyers but he was dead when taken from the water.

The Zeppelin II tried to circle the storm but was drawn into it. The rigging and masts were useless and the heavy rain and furious winds jammed the helpless craft seaward. The occupants of the forward car persons saved were riding in the rear car had a chance to escape. The gondola.

dro aeroplane accompanying the dirigible also had a narrow escape from destruction. The aviator, Lieut. Langfeld, however, saw the cyclonic storm approaching and piloted his machine toward Helgoland. He landed just in time.

$25,000 FIRE IN LYNN

Storage Oil Tanks Were Threatened

LYNN, Sept. 10.—The entire fire department of this city and Swampscott combined last night to fight a threatening blaze which totally destroyed the hay and grain warehouse and sheds of John F. Hunt on Columbia avenue, causing a loss of $25,000.

Three storage tanks of the Standard Oil company, containing thousands of gallons of crude oil and gasoline, are located within 20 feet of the Hunt building and grave fears were felt that these would explode, but a water curtain which protected them aided the firemen in preventing their destruction.

It became known today that a hydro aeroplane accompanying the dirigible also had a narrow escape from destruction. The aviator, Lieut. Langfeld, however, saw the cyclonic storm approaching and piloted his machine toward Helgoland. He landed just in time.

Move Acids, Gases and Clogged Wastes From Liver and Bowels

Get a 10-cent box now. That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, dizziness and sick headache, means a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets. They immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular for months. ## SENATE PASSES THE TARIFF BILL

Vote Was 44 to 37—Many Surprises—Measure Goes to House Today for Conference

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The democratic revision bill passed the senate at 4:43 o'clock yesterday afternoon amid a burst of applause that swept down from crowded galleries and found its echo on the crowded floor of the senate. Its passage was attended with surprises in the final moments of the voting when Senator La Follette, republican, cast his vote with the democrats and was joined a few moments later by Senator Poindexter, progressive.

The democrats had counted throughout the long tariff fight upon losing the votes of Senators Russell and Thornton of Louisiana, democrats, who voted against the bill yesterday because it would put sugar on the free list. Until the names of Senators La Follette and Poindexter were actually called, however, no one knew definitely the stand they would take, and their votes were greeted with enthusiastic applause.

President Wilson gratified expressed great gratification over the end of the long struggle in the senate. Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee who had piloted the bill through the finance committee, the democratic caucus and the senate, predicted that its passage would bring immediate stimulus to the business of the country.

As it passed the senate, the tariff bill represents an average reduction of more than four per cent. from the rates of the original bill that passed the house, and nearly 28 per cent. from the rates of the existing law. In many particulars the senate has changed the bill that passed the house, and a conference committee of the two houses will begin work Wednesday or Thursday to adjust these differences. Leaders of both houses predicted that the conference will consume less than two weeks' time.

To Hasten the Bill

The senate endeavored yesterday to hasten the bill on its progress to the White House by naming its members of the conference committee as soon as the bill passed. Vice President Marshall appointed Senators Simmons, Stone, Williams and Johnson, democrats, and Senators Pearce, Lodge and La Follette, republicans, as the senate conference. Senator Stone withdrew from the committee and Senator Shively was appointed in his place. The house conference, it was reported last night, will be Representatives Underwood, Kitchin and Rainey, democrats, and Payne and Fordney, republicans. Each house will have an equal vote in the conference committee, even though each does not name the same number of conferees.

The final struggle began at 4 o'clock when, under a previous agreement, arbitrary votes began on pending amendments. During the closing hours of debate Senator La Follette had been the center of interest, proposing final amendments on the cotton and agricultural schedules and discussing some features of the bill which he deemed favorable.

The Roll Call
Following was the roll call on the tariff bill:
Yes: Ashurst, Bacon, Chamberlain, Chilton, Clarke of Arkansas, Fletcher, Gore, Hitchcock, Hollis, Hughes, James, Johnson, Kern, Lane, Lewis, Martin, Martine, Myers, Newlands, O'Gorman, Overman, Owen, Pittman, Pomeroy, Robinson, Sutherland, Shively, Smith, Sheppard, Shields, Shively, Simmons, Smith of Arizona, Smith of Georgia, Smith of Maryland, Smith of South Carolina, Stone, Swanson, Thompson, Tillman, Vardaman, Walsh, Williams, (democrats); La Follette (republican) and Poindexter, (progressive). Total 44.

Nays: Borah, Bradley, Brady, Brandegee, Bristow, Catron, Clapp, Clark of Wyoming, Colt, Cummins, Dillingham, Fall, Gallinger, Jackson, Jones, Kenyon, Lippitt, Lodge, McCumber, McLean, Nelson, Norris, Oliver, Page, Perkins, Perkins, Root, Sherman, Smoot, Stephenson, Sterling, Sutherland, Warren, Weeks and Works, (republicans); and Randall and Thornton, (democrats). Total 37.

Paired and not voting: Burton,

Crawford, Goff, Du Pont, Townsend and Smith of Michigan, (republicans); Bankhead, Bryan, Culberson, Lee, Thomas and Reed, (democrats). Total 12.

Absent and not voted: Burleigh and Gronna, (republicans). Total 7. Vacancy: Alabama 1.

Senator Simmons congratulated When the vote had been announced, Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, the leader of the minority, recognized and congratulated Senator Simmons for his "courageous, kindly and considerate manner" in the conduct of the debate. He said he knew of no tariff fight characterized by such good feeling throughout and attributed it to the personality of Senator Simmons.

"The bill itself is bad," he said, "but its management has been in every way creditable to the majority, and eminently fair to the minority."

Senator Simmons expressed his appreciation. Last night he said there was little for him to say that he had not said in debate. The bill, he asserted would go to the country and speak for itself.

Predicts Better Times
"I am greatly gratified that the bill has passed and I think that it will not be long in conference. In my opinion there has been a man's nation of business in the country pending the action of the senate. Now I believe there will be an immediate stimulus to business and in the end we will have better times in this country."

Just before the voting on amendments began, Senator La Follette yielded a few minutes of his time to Senator Thornton of Louisiana, who was about to desert his colleagues on the roll call.

"It is hard for me to vote against this bill," said the Louisiana senator. "It is a bill made a party measure by the party with which I voted allegiance forty-six years ago. It is harder still that I am forced to vote against it, that my own party now seeks to strike a vital blow against the great sugar industry of my state."

Charged With Duty
The senator said that he was charged with a duty from his state higher than any duty he owed the democratic party and voting against the bill, he contended, was keeping his pledge to his state and to the democratic party of Louisiana, which denounced free sugar in its last election. Free sugar, the senator concluded, would destroy the sugar industry of Louisiana and deliver the American people into the hands of a rapacious trust.

Income tax amendments by Senators Bristow and La Follette similar to those they introduced several days ago, were defeated by votes of 61 to

18, and 52 to 18 respectively. An amendment by Senator Gallinger that proposed to send the whole tariff question over until December, 1914, and submit the bill to a popular referendum next fall was defeated 63 to 18. An amendment by Senator Catron for 20 per cent. duty on raw wool was defeated, 42 to 35, and a general substitute wool bill offered by Senator Smoot was defeated without a roll call.

Censor Moving Pictures
One important change, made on the recommendation of the finance committee, gives the secretary of the treasury power to censor all moving picture films imported. An amendment by Senator McCumber proposing higher duties on barley, oats, wheat and flaxseed, was rejected 45 to 25, and one by Senator La Follette for a five per cent duty on wheat was defeated without a roll call.

Senator Jones, acting for the finance committee, secured the adoption of an amendment modifying the provision of the bill that authorized the secretary of the treasury and collector of internal revenue to employ income tax officials without regard to the civil service laws. The new provision leaves it optional with the officials as to whether or not they will take employees from the list of civil service eligibles.

"Great," Says President
President Wilson last night issued the following statement:

"A fight for the people and for free business which has lasted a long generation through has at last been won handsomely and completely. A leadership and a steadfastness in counsel has been shown in both houses of which the democratic party has reason to be very proud. There has been no weakness or confusion or drifting back, but a state of mind, directness and command of circumstances. I am happy to have been connected with the government of the nation at a time when such things could happen and to have worked in association with men who could do them. There is every reason to believe that currency reform will be carried through with equal energy, directness and loyalty to the general interest. When that is done this first session of the sixty-third congress will have passed into history with undivided distinction. I want to express my special admiration for the devoted, intelligent and untiring work of Mr. Underwood and Mr. Simmons and the committee associated with them."

When the president was asked to comment on the votes of Senator La Follette and Senator Poindexter, he expressed very warm admiration for their "conscientious independence and courage."

The president, while always confident that the democratic majority would be kept intact to insure the passage of a bill by a safe margin, had been hoping for the votes of progressive republicans. He told some of his friends last night that aid of this kind outside of the party ranks was one of the concrete evidences that the democratic party was progressive.

Personally the president felt happy over the result. He had just returned from the gold links when Secretary Tumulty, who had been an eager auditor in the senate gallery, drove rapidly to the White House and beaming with smiles told the president of the vote.

"Great," was the president's first remark as he went to his study and telephoned Chairman Simmons his hearty congratulations.

The president hopes to share the vacations which members of the senate are about to take by going to Cornish, N. H., for a few days. Unless the Mexican situation develops an unexpected turn, he will leave here Thursday.

DEMOCRATIC TARIFF BILL AS IT PASSED SENATE, BACK TO HOUSE TODAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The democratic tariff revision bill, as it passed the senate last night changed in many particulars from the form in which it left the house. It was sent back to that body today and tomorrow will find its way into a joint conference committee where the finishing touches will be given to it. The senate stole a march on the house when immediately after passing the bill it decided to "insist" upon amendments and ask for a conference. Under this procedure when the bill went to the house today there was nothing for the house to do but to accept the amendments or meet the request of the senate for the appointment of a house committee. The move of the senate leaders while formal in character saved a day's time in getting the bill into the joint conference committee.

Preliminary conferences within the last two weeks between Representative Underwood and Senator Simmons, the tariff leaders of the two bodies, have led to an understanding that little time will be consumed in the conference discussion of the bill. It was predicted today that the measure probably would be ready for the president within ten days.

B. F. Keith's Theatre
Some idea of the magnitude of "Nephtune's Garden," appearing at the B. F. Keith theatre, this week, may be gained when it is known that the show appears on the stage including divers, mimes, dancers and acrobats, that a musical director and an aquatic director are carried, that three special electricians and four scene men are carried constantly, to insure correct setting of the stage, that it is a pleasing, act, and one wholly unlike any other ever produced here. The first impression never leaves one. The show is a masterpiece of the theatre, the shooting fountain in the centre of the enchanted pool, the seductive music, the whole atmosphere, in fact, seems charged with excitement. Seven other acts surround it, including Claude & Fanny Usher, Irene Myers, Co., Al. Carleton, the Labranks, the Tabors, Pearl & Roth and the Pades. In fact, everyone partial to a play with a theme that is entirely novel in conception and treatment and an interest that starts at the base of the curtain and never ceases until the final drop should witness it. Produced on a scale of elaborateness seldom seen in a popular priced stock house and with each and every member of the company in their parts, which is another rarity as regards presentations by stock companies, this play is by far the best offering. Then there are the moving pictures. There are shown between the acts and for an hour before the play starts and two real dramatic action which hold much interest and others. Lakeview Theatre
Dr. John C. Bowker, who is giving his wonderful portrayals of the Passion Play at Oberammergau, Bavaria, nightly at the Lakeview theatre, draws very general patronage through the excellence of his descriptions and their moving power. The wonderful climax of this most thrilling of all dramas comes in the crucifixion, and with rare power, does the lecturer carry his auditors on. To all persons who are familiar with the story of the closing hours of the Saviour's life and they are legion, this lecture should prove one of the most beautiful things of their lives. It is given in a direct, chaste English manner, and is enhanced by beautiful colored photographs, taken by a noted firm in Munich, Germany. For his afternoon lectures, Dr. Bowker dwells on "Mexico," and some of the noted persons he has met there. He was especially friendly with former President Porfirio Diaz and knows the people of the land intimately. Cars will leave for the park every 15 minutes, and will be in waiting at the entrance at the close of the lecture. Admission for adults is 15 and 25 cents, and for children 10 cents.

At the home of Miss Annie Hill in Agawam street, a linen shower was tendered Miss Nellie Campbell by a number of her friends last evening. She was presented many beautiful and costly gifts of linen. # LOCAL WORKERS FOOLED BY AGENT

Help Seekers by False Statements Induce Many to Give Up Work and Go to New Hampshire

According to a letter received by a resident of this city from a former Lowell man who is now working in the cotton mills at Newmarket, New Hampshire, the people of this and other Massachusetts cities are being imposed upon by the proprietors of employment offices and mill agents who travel through the different cities to secure help for the up country mills.

It is said that these help seekers frequent the sections of the cities occupied by foreigners and by false statements induce these foreigners and sometimes English speaking people to give up their positions in the local mills to go with them to the New Hampshire towns. The people are led to believe that the wages paid there are much higher than here and that all transportation expenses are paid, but the employee who follows the advice of this agent, after he has worked a week learns that the fare is taken from his wages and that the agent who secured him to go to mill also receives a sum which is taken from the pay envelope.

OFFICER JOHN REGIS EXPECTED TO RETURN

For His Capture But He Is Not Likely to Receive It—Worked Hard on the Case

Word was received in this city a couple of days ago that Demetrius Vires, the noted murderer who was arrested in this city on the night of June 26 by Special Officer John Regis for the Greek government, is still at large, and what is better he is right at home with his folks in Greece and his countrymen are aware of the fact.

That he is wanted for murder. Accordingly Officer Regis of this city is still to get the $1000 fine or nearly $1000 for the capture of this notorious fugitive.

A description of the murderer was sent to this city some time in June, and Officer Regis set out to work to capture the fugitive. The man who was wanted was a Greek, and after working hard for a couple of weeks, the officer was rewarded with success, for on the evening of June 26, he placed Vires under arrest at the corner of Market and Suffolk streets. The man was taken to the police station, and there the police chief, he admitted his guilt to two murders.

Greek States Inspector, A. A. Seraphic of the bureau of immigration at Washington, D. C., had been on the man's trail for some time but his charge had nothing to do with the complaints which had been called.

$150,000 FIRE AT SALISBURY BEACH

Hotel Cushing and Other Buildings at Centre in Ashes—200 Vacationists Shivered on Beach all Night

SALISBURY BEACH, Sept. 10.—A chill northeast wind whipping in from Massachusetts bay, at sunrise today found 200 homeless vacationists shivering under scanty coverings on Salisbury beach. Chilled and drenched by clothing, men, women and children stood guard all night over the few belongings they were able to rescue from the sweep of the fire that devastated the summer resort late yesterday and last night. The sun's rays though welcomed brought relief that was but slight, for the wind effectually dispelled any warmth.

Heaps of smoking ruins were all that remained today of nearly 200 cottages and five or six hotels that were in the path of the flames. The "Center," so-called, is practically in ashes. Remains of coming arrests and a state police investigation were current. Early today a squad of police arrived from Haverhill to help the local officers in guarding the ruins.

Officials were apparently satisfied that a second fire, which broke out shortly after midnight at the southern end of the beach, was of incendiary origin. This fire was extinguished after it had destroyed two cottages. Chief of Police Samuel Beckman declared today he expected to make an arrest in this connection within a few hours.

Conservative estimates this morning placed the loss from the conflagration at $150,000, for many of the cottages destroyed were of light construction intended for use only in warm weather. Reports of looting were current this morning, but no arrests had been made.

Chief Beckman has started an investigation of the fire and has asked the assistance of the state police. The wind was blowing south and this caused the fire to spread more in that direction. There were but half a dozen front cottages north of the Leighton burned, the last being that of the Haverhill Cycle club. The Columbia Villa, owned by Mrs. Bernard Burns of this city, was not burned. The dance hall opposite the Cushing hotel was burned, but the other large dance hall was saved as was the theatre and the Salisbury hotel.

The fire was checked at the Hope chapel on the south side, this edifice being saved.

Many of the cottagers lost everything, while some of the storekeepers had but small places and had them well insured. The postoffice building, which the syndicate took from the owner at the expiration of the lease, was burned down and in this the townspeople felt that the fire came as an instrument of justice.

A Gale of Flame

The fire started at 3.55 p. m. in Arthur Williams' photograph gallery, a 10x20 frame building on the waterfront close to the corner of the big Cushing hotel.

The fire burst through the large skylight and swept into the bath houses and fences directly to the top of the Cushing hotel building.

The fire jumped to the Atlantic House, almost directly across the square from

RUN DOWN BY AUTO THE SEPT. CROP REPORT

Dedham Boy Was Killed Of U. S. Dept. of Agriculture Issued Today

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Joseph Montague, a 10-year-old boy of Weymouth street, Dedham, was killed near his home last evening by being run down by an automobile owned by Albert M. Jennings of 256 Main street, Haverhill, and operated by his son, Horace N. Jennings.

Montague, who was a son of Amos M. Montague, was crossing the street, it is said. Mr. and Mrs. Jennings, their son and daughter, and three other women, were in the car on their way to Haverhill from Providence. After running down the boy the occupants of the automobile picked him up, took him to the police station and then called several physicians.

The boy was dead before medical aid arrived. The police questioned Horace Jennings and his father and after becoming convinced that the accident was unavoidable allowed the automobile party to go.

Daniel Jones Committed Suicide

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 10.—Daniel Jones, butler and companion to Theodore Davis, the Baptist explorer, committed suicide by shooting himself in his room today at the Davis residence at Bitterman Point. Mr. Jones was an expert marksman for sea bass from the long stands on Bryans reef and a familiar figure to those making the well known seap drive.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

That the feature pictures being shown at the Lowell opera house are pleasing the spectators of this city is plainly shown by the ever increasing patronage of this popular playhouse.

Beginning with the matinee today, one of the biggest feature pictures ever shown in the city of Lowell will be presented at this temple of mirth. As an extra and added attraction, "Victorian Hard's Theodora" in three reels, commencing over 1000 actors and produced at a cost of over $100,000, will be seen there today and tomorrow. The story tells of the love of "Theodora," the empress of the Roman empire, for "Andreas," a Greek, and the leader of the rebels; of their trials and persecutions and their unhappy end, caused by jealousy. It is a wonderful picture, showing the Roman soldiers in deadly combat, and the mammoth arena scenes. In addition to the above feature will be seen "The Fatal Seal," a Lubin drama; "The Troublesome Daughters," a Viagraph comedy; "The Good Indian," a Sars Indian drama; "The Camera," a Testimony, another Lubin product; and the "Smuggler's Last Deal," a Kalem production.

Japanese Army in China

GET AWAY FROM BEER

Brewery Workers Hold Annual Outing

The drivers, butlers and brewery workers of the Harvard brewery held an outing at Nahant last evening and nearly 300 men attended. Leaving this city shortly after 10 o'clock on three special cars the party arrived at the picnic grounds in time for the ball game which was scheduled to take place at 11:15. The game which was played between teams representing two of the different departments was very interesting and somewhat close.

At noon dinner was served and music was furnished by a band. Several victrola selections were given and some of the picnicers sang the popular songs to the enjoyment of all present.

Later in the afternoon a sporting program which consisted of jumping contests, races for fat men, three-legged race and other events was carried out and prizes were awarded to the winners. Considerable friendly rivalry existed at the races as many of the employees have been boasting for the past few days about their ability in athletics. Refreshments were served during the afternoon and an entertainment was furnished. It is planned to return to this city early this evening.

Production of Cereals

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The department of agriculture today estimates the total production of all cereals this year would be 11,154,000 tons of 2,01 per cent less than last year.

It is estimated the number of stock holdings in the country Sept. 1 about the same as a year ago and the condition as 91.3 per cent of the ten year average.

SALISBURY BEACH FIRE

the Cushing hotel, then to the Essex House, the rollaway, dance hall and roller coaster.

At the same time it spread in another direction to the transfer station. At this point the wind, which had been east, veered to the south and swept the fire directly up the beach, and it was no time before buildings after building went down in the path of the flames.

Notwithstanding the approaching twilight the beach was illuminated by an intense glare, the heat forcing even the fighters back and making approach to the buildings practically impossible.

The fire now on both sides the main street sped towards the transfer station on one side and the postoffice on the other reducing every building to ashes. The blaze here was visible for twenty miles distance and the light on the sky after twilight could be seen much farther.

The fire turned at the transfer station, which was completely destroyed, went back and took a large number of stores along the board walk. In its turn and twists this fire was one of the freakiest seen in years.

The fire was about to attack Montgomery dance hall, which had been protected by rain coats, overcoats, bed clothing and everything else in that line obtainable soaked in sea water, weighted down with wet sand. This it was hoped, would prove a barrier to the solid wall of flame which bore down upon the dance hall. The big dance hall was finally saved. The other was destroyed.

In the North End

It had been hoped to save this section. Cottage after cottage caught fire, the flames darting back and forth in a perfect maze, making such a thing as systematized fighting out of the question.

In a moment the whole place was a seething furnace. The beach life savers turned out on a fire call and formed a pull line on the beach. The unique feature of this fire was the fact that sand proved more efficacious than water, and the final stopping of the flames was largely due to the wet sand. At an early period of the fire the church bells tolled out a fire signal. By this time everybody on the beach was trying in some way to fight the fire, but their efforts being disorganized proved fruitless.

Outside Aid Called For

The town officials then telephoned for outside aid, calling first upon Newburyport. Chief George F. Osborne of that city responded immediately with several pieces of apparatus, making a record run over the four-mile course. By the time they arrived the entire midway was ablaze. Realizing the futility of attempting to check the flames with the water facilities at hand, Chief Osborne advised calling the surrounding town for help. Portsmouth fire department sent over an automobile engine, but there was no water available for it, and the machine stood idle, the firemen turning to work with their hands until a position for the engine could be found within reach of the fire.

The Haverhill fire brigade arrived at 7 o'clock and immediately took station at the North End.

Dynamite Is Used

When Chief Gordon reached the scene and took it in at a glance, he called for dynamite, and within a short time the dynamiting of the cottages had commenced.

The Drummond cottage was torn down by volunteers and then dynamite hurled into the beach cottage, and into Clifton Hall, making a gap in the path of the fire for more than a hundred feet, but this proved ineffectual and it was necessary to dynamite the Currier cottage.

Previous to these operations the fire had made a clean sweep of the South End as far as Chase's bungalow. This is located just below Hope chapel, where the fire was checked in its southern march after it had consumed some 200 buildings. From the centre along the South End there was an open space cleared out by fire some 200 feet for about an eighth of a mile, but the fire was able to jump the open area to a point in the cottages beyond.

Along the tracks running to the South End were the principal restaurants of the beach, 10 or a dozen, all of which were totally destroyed.

Shortly after the fire reached the Cushing hotel word spread along the midway that Mildred Allen, the proprietor's daughter, was in the room on the top floor of the building and was hemmed in by fire. Two volunteers, William McKague of Haverhill and Joseph Daly of Lawrence, two clerks at the hotel, fought their way through the smoke to the top floor but upon arriving there found the room vacant.

Overcome By Smoke

As they tried to make their way back to safety, Daly, blinded by smoke, fell downstairs, and while he lay there was overcome by the smoke. McKague reached the open end and helped his companion. A searching party, immediately sent in, found Daly lying barely conscious on the floor. Very few persons saved anything. The fire swept over the beach so rapidly that the saving of life was the only consideration. The beach down to the water's edge was piled high with bedding and some furniture. There were absolutely no lights, and as darkness descended early, women and children lay in the cold all night.

Two Women Rescued

During the fire many sought refuge in the pavilion at the beach centre, but at 3 o'clock this also caught fire and they were forced to seek what shelter they could under the starlight. Many of the men who had been at work during the day returned to the beach only to find their houses in ruins and their families stretched exhausted on the sand. Collins of station 2, Cambridge, who is stopping at the Haverhill cottage, while working with the volunteers who were fighting the fire in the Hotel Leighton, came across the prostrate bodies of two women roomers on the second floor. The women were Mrs. H. W. Tilton of Lynn and Mrs. J. H. Tilton of Lynn. Mrs. Tilton was carried to safety without any accident, but while taking out Mrs. Tilton the policeman was overcome with smoke and he too had to be rescued by the volunteers.

Lawrence Man Saved Boy

Joseph Hurley of Lawrence, upon hearing screams for help from the Leighton, rushed in and found Mrs. James Higgins of Haverhill

AN OVERCOAT YELL

CASH! CASH!!

For Spot Cash I Buy 160 Pieces of Rockville Overcoatings

I have been a tailor all my life. All I know is tailoring, and today I am recognized as a Boston institution, employing hundreds of Boston help, having the buying facilities of 15 stores. I am in a position to sell you as low as the ordinary ready-to-wear house charges the middle man, who in turn sells you.

Mr. Reader: I have been for years the moving spirit of the brilliantly successful Mitchell stores. My styles, ideas, my advertising, my window displays, my doorways, and merchandising methods are copied far and wide, and right here in Lowell, in the last few years you have seen new firms open up for a short while only to lose the pace and fall by the wayside.

I opened in New York city last spring, and on account of the crowds of customers who packed my store to the doors, it was necessary for me to put a policeman at the door to keep buyers out until those who were in had bought. The clothes there say I can't last, if I give the people the values I am offering, but I have been in Boston for 15 years, seven years in Worcester, five years in Lowell and Springfield, eight years in Buffalo, N. Y., nine years in Providence, R. I., four years in Hartford, and each year my business shows an increase, and when some other cases reflection on Mitchell, ask him how much of an increase his business showed, and then ask him how MITCHELL, THE TAILOR, shows such enormous gains. That's the answer. (Signed)

MITCHELL, the Tailor

Rockville overcoatings had a reputation before you ever heard of Mitchell, the Tailor. The fact that I sell them at low prices cannot hurt that reputation. It only adds to mine. That's why I offer them at the price. When you realize that these goods have always been too high in price for me to handle, you can see my position. Every ready-to-wear house that spends thousands of dollars advertising in the magazines sells this cloth at from $20 to $35. They use these on account of the guarantee that goes with the goods. If they fade or shine within one year, I will make a new coat free.

Fall and Winter Suitings. I walked around town last week and was surprised to see in windows soft wooly shaggy fabrics—they call them cassimeres—marked $15, $18, $20 and $25—cassimeres, which by their very structural nature can never hold the shape, soft wooly fabrics that never can give decent service or wear.

I tell you I can clip these prices in halves, and then sell you a double and twisted all wool worsted suiting. An all-wool worsted will hold its shape, will give you service and wear. You may complain after a year or so that worsteds wear shiny. It does—it lasts long enough to get shiny. Cassimeres never shine. They don't last long enough. Cassimeres wear thread-bare in a few weeks or months because they are built and constructed like blotting paper. Worsteds are dearer than cassimeres. But I won't handle cassimeres. I tell you I am giving the people the biggest run in the country for the money when custom clothing is in question.

shouting lustily for someone to assist in the rescue of her 3-year-old son, Arthur, who was hemmed in by flames. Hurley made a daring dash into the smoke-filled rooms and soon emerged with the boy safe from all harm.

Later, while attempting to extinguish a blaze on the roof of the Hurley with the aid of blankets, Hurley slipped and fell 20 feet to the roof of the Newark, next door. He was stunned and bruised, but after receiving medical assistance on the beach returned to the fire lines again.

Cripple Taken From Flames

Mrs. George C. Morse, aged 63, a cripple, and the wife of George C. Morse of Haverhill, was rescued just in the nick of time by Ernest Brodeur, aged 21, of Haverhill. Their cottage was already attacked and the inmates had fled. Brodeur and his mother, who lived up stairs, were watching the blazing horizon. Suddenly Mrs. Brodeur asked: "Where is Mrs. Morse?" In an instant Ernest had dashed into the building, knocked at the door of the aged woman and had assisted her out. She had been asleep and was ignorant of the fire. She had barely left the steps when the cottage caught fire and in a few moments was leveled to the ground. Her husband, coming home shortly after, found his home burned to the ground.

Vandals Looted Property

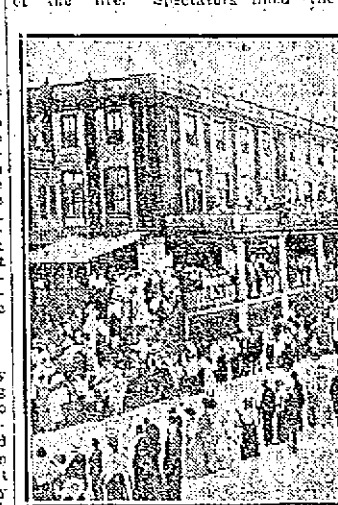

Vandals found excellent opportunity to ply their unscrupulous trade, taking advantage of unprotected women who eagerly sought their proffered assistance. In many cases it was reported that unscrupulous persons went from cottage to cottage offering to assist in the saving of valuables and many persons who relied on them suffered. All over the beach cash registers and safes were scattered higher and higher, and in many instances young men armed with pieces of iron and shovels were noted trying to loot these.

During the height of the fire at the Cushing a soda water tank shot skyward, following a tremendous report, and when found it had landed across the square near the Associates' building, half buried in the sand. During the fire there were numerous long, blue tongues of flame darted skyward from severed gas pipes.

Sightseers Hamper Firemen

The fire department was hampered in its approach to the beach by automobiles and carriages lined up for half a mile on the beach road, which is the main thoroughfare, that must be passed before reaching the scene of the fire. Spectators lined the beach by the thousands, and when the dynamiters commenced scoring of her sons in their haste to get away from the scene, rushed into the surf knee-deep in their confusion.

Walter Coulson of the Salisbury Beach association was in Boston when the fire broke out and immediately left for the beach in an automobile. One way his machine broke down and he lost many valuable minutes, but arrived around 5 o'clock and went to his cottage at the North End.

He is very unpopular with the cottagers as representing the triumvirate that took over the property of many cottagers when their leases ran out. It was because of these proceedings that a fire was recently predicted. It was the threats of fire that caused the syndicate to place heavy insurance on 500 buildings on the beach over by the Associates without any compensation whatever for the owner, who was ordered to buy the small lot for $7500 or else move the building away. There were other cases of a similar nature and so many had vowed vengeance against the Associates that the cottage owners felt that the beach would soon be burned down, but few expected the conflagration so soon. It was this feeling that caused many cottage owners to remove the valuables from their cottages on clothing up after Labor day for the win-

Injunction Served Today

The writ was served on City Treas. A. G. Stiles this morning and it is generally admitted that the case is more or less complicated. The city of Lowell annexed the town of Dracut, May 18, 1874, it appears, retained ownership of the cemetery in question.

The town of Dracut has always taken care of the cemetery and inasmuch as the town owns the city did not hesitate to assess the town for the sidewalk which was built in 1911. ## WON TYPEWRITING CHAMPIONSHIP

Miss Bessie Linsitz of Kansas City was second with an average of 100.

This year to keep the grass out in the cemetery. The cemetery is partly public and partly private. In the private portion are buried Gen. and Mrs. B. F. Butler and a son, Ben Israel, Gen. Butler's brother, Capt. John Butler, Col. J. M. G. Parker, B. F. Webster, Prentiss Webster and a number of the older residents of Dracut.

Graves of Soldiers In the public portion are buried soldiers of the American Revolution and the Civil war. The cemetery is today entirely within the limits of Lowell, but it has never been ceded to the city.

Before the sidewalk now in controversy was laid a hearing was granted by the commission on streets of the city council of 1911. It is understood there were remonstrances by lot owners and others, but that the committee recommended its construction and that the city council endorsed the recommendation.

One of the most pitiful examples of what a shiftless drunkard will do to escape the necessity of working that the local police court has ever witnessed was presented this morning when the case of Thomas J. Brown was called for trial.

Brown is a middle aged man with a physique which could never be called frail. A stubble of beard overshadowed a face upon which sat an expression of personal fear for himself alone as he listened to the prattle of his little baby girl and heard his wife testify that she had been supporting him as well as their child for the past five weeks. Even the stork's police court officers showed their disgust at the defendant tried to break down his wife's testimony.

The patient woman had said nothing to the police when her husband absconded with her child. When Brown finally came home one day, however, and stole the carefully hoarded up earnings, which his wife testified to.

Two more boys were rounded up by Officer O'Sullivan on a complaint charging them with being present at a "trap game" last Sunday afternoon. Judge Enright, in speaking of the case, remarked that he wished the penalty was greater for this misdemeanor so that it might be stamped out in this city. Both were fined the maximum penalty, $5.

Bryan Sues Police Chief JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 10.—Secretary of State and Mrs. William J. Bryan yesterday filed suit against Chief of Police F. C. Roach for $100 damages for the detention of a $550 diamond ring, identified as the property of Mrs. Bryan and held by the local police department.

The suit is set for trial October 6. The ring in question was either lost or stolen a year ago, and recovered by the police from a colored man in a local hotel.

MORGAN'S WITHDRAWAL

J. P. Morgan & Co. have notified the New Haven railroad of their intention of cancelling their contract as the fiscal agents of the road at the end of ninety days, and as is usual in all that concerns this railroad and its interests, the reason publicly assigned is not accepted at its face value by the people. Mr. Morgan speaking officially as head of the firm explains their attitude by saying that the action is taken so that the new administration may have a free hand in the financial affairs of the railroad and implies no hostility towards it or its new management. He further states that the road may renew its contract whenever it so pleases.

There is a persistent rumor, however, that the Morgan firm has resolved to withdraw from further financing of the New Haven because of the severe and continued criticism of the financial policy of the road. Following the numerous accidents, lessening of the stock values or any policy that failed to receive general approval, the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. received not a little share of the blame, and though this may not be the reason for their resolve to withdraw from identification with the road, there is no doubt that Mr. Morgan and his associates resent the attitude of the public. Still so long as criticism of the New Haven railroad and its management continues, so long will criticisms of its financial management continue, though it is doubtful if its financial condition is as much in need of constructive up-building as its physical property.

At the present time it cannot be stated definitely whether the New Haven will renew its contract with the Morgan firm or not, and until that is known one may accept the published explanation of Morgan or that of rumor without being able to establish the authenticity of either. If the contract is renewed it is probable that there will be some arrangement by which the financial backers will offset any apparent responsibility for conditions over which they have no control. They must be rather tired of being blamed for rear-end collisions or poor equipment as much as for the unwise schemes of expansion and monopoly that grew too heavy for the shoulders of President Mellen. If the railroad does not renew its financial contract with the firm of Morgan & Co. the people who ascribe other than the officially published reasons for the coming separation of interests may justify their attitude.

Whether the contract is renewed or not, the future of the New Haven railroad will not necessarily be affected by that fact alone. If the Morgan firm was responsible for all the unsatisfactory activities of the railroad in the past or if its future plans are directly at variance with the best interests of the business of this region or New Haven stockholders, it shall be powerless to carry out its schemes against the demonstrated power of an adverse public opinion. The New Haven railroad is at present confused and unsatisfactory financially and physically but nevertheless it is a railroad that has an almost positive monopoly of the business of one of the richest sections of the country and under judicious management it is sure to prosper. The confidence of the public is more desirable to this end than the financial backing of the house of Morgan or the presidency of Mr. Mellen.

COMPULSORY VOTING

David I. Walsh touches a sore spot when he makes compulsory voting one of the reforms on which he bases his candidacy for governor. It is not a pleasant reflection that where government is so ready to the hands of the people and dependent on them, a law to make voting compulsory should be even hinted at, but he who would ignore the absolute disregard for the duties and privileges of citizenship that obtains among hundreds and thousands of our citizens cannot remedy the defect by optimism or a refusal to view this danger to our institutions squarely. A consciousness of the absolute duty of each and every citizen to vote intelligently is one of the greatest needs of the times, and if Mr. Walsh has not the proper idea of bringing the people back to a realization of their neglect and their obligation, he is at least to be thanked for making it an issue in the contest for the governorship. The more widely the matter is discussed the greater the good, although in reality no law can compel a man to vote under the secret ballot.

Intelligent opposition to the principle of compulsory voting must be based on its inherent principle rather than on any effect it may have or is alleged to have by those who do not favor it. As Mr. Walsh says, we compel a man to serve on a jury regardless of his feelings in the matter and without asking him whether he votes or not, and the administration of law and justice does not suffer as a consequence. Any reasonable man can see a sensible reason why he

The senate democratic caucus has rejected the amendment to the tariff bill permitting the plumage of wild birds to be imported into this country and bird lovers and all who favor the conservation of wild life may well rejoice. As it passed the house the bill prohibited the importation of such plumage except for educational and scientific purposes. Later as the result of influences brought to bear by strong millinery interests the senate committee changed the clause in a manner that would have nullified its effect, but luckily it has now been restored to its original form and in all probability will become law as it stands. The clause was inserted in the tariff bill at first owing to the efforts of the Audubon society and many similar organizations.

The government of this country in passing the McLean bill which protects wild birds while migrating within the limits of the United States and this still more far reaching tariff clause, sets an example worthy of imitation to every civilized country of the world. Woman can satisfy her vanity very well without wiping out one of the glories of the world in the process and we cannot afford to kill beauty and song for the sake of an Easter hat. The ladies will not lose one iota of their attractiveness but the entire world will gain in idealism, beauty and humanity.

ELECTION OF PETERS

A study of the election figures of the third congressional Maine district in which John A. Peters, republican, was elected Monday, reveals the primary fact of the collapse of the progressive party in the state of Maine. The narrowness of the margin of Mr. Peters over the democratic candidate cannot be accepted as a repudiation of democratic policies, and taking into consideration the local issues involved and some degree of treachery within the ranks of the democrats, it does not indicate any republican triumph in the national sense. The majority of the voters of the third district may not have been with Pattangall, but the returns do not prove that they are not with Wilson.

The vote for President Wilson last fall was 14,692 and Pattangall received 14,633, only about 100 less. It will, therefore, readily be seen that in this formerly overwhelmingly republican district the democrats have held their own and in fact have gained, taking into account the local defections in their ranks to which the defeat is ascribed. The election of a democrat from the third Maine district would still be considered remarkable but not a whit more so than the almost total collapse of the Maine progressives within such a short period.

ACQUITTAL OF JEROME

If there were no Thaw case there would have been no arrest of Mr. Jerome for the trivial offence of gambling in its slightest sense while playing cards with some newspaper reporters, and Canada would have been spared some humiliation and the accusation of hypocrisy. No one believes that the arrest of Mr. Jerome was actuated by indignation at his act, and the virtuous citizen of Coaticook who subjected him to the indignity of a needless arrest and brief imprisonment neither added to the lustre of Canada for righteousness or to his own personal integrity. The judge who apologized to Mr. Jerome, really voiced the sentiments of "every right minded man in Canada," but his apology was unnecessary, unless it was meant for the distinguished New York lawyer personally. New York state and the country in general saw merely the humorous side of the situation, and the famous case became more picturesque than ever because of its newest and most ludicrous aspect.

SHAKESPEARE POPULAR

Lists of plays for the coming season submitted to the press by the larger theatrical managers reveal the fact that a far larger number of companies than usual will devote the theatrical season to the plays of Shakespeare. As the men back of the coming Shakespearean productions are leaders in their profession and of the type to be swayed by financial rather than artistic considerations, their resolve may be taken as an indication that the plays of the bard of Avon are still popular. In these degenerate times of moving pictures and idiotic musical comedies it is a sign of hope that there are still among us people in sufficient numbers to make paying audiences to Hamlet, King Lear, Romeo and Juliet and Much Ado About Nothing. It may raise the standard of the culture of our prosaic generation in the eyes of our children's children.

Seen and Heard

A professor from Iowa went to England last summer and was introduced to a professor from one of the English universities. The latter, who was American, said: "I met one of your colleagues last summer. We had another professor from Ohio here to visit us."

"I am from Iowa," said the first.

"How interesting. I am sure the other gentleman called it Ohio," replied the first.

A negro porter in a barber shop made a speech one night at his colored men's club. It was quite an effort, creating a sensation among his brothers on account of the number of big words it contained.

His employer heard of it, and the next day began twisting him when he saw him absorbed in a dictionary.

"What are you doing, Sam?" he asked.

"Looking up some more big words for another speech," he replied.

"No, sah," he replied. "Tain't that. Ah's jes' translatin' the speech. Ah made las' night."

Thomas W. Lawson, at a dinner in Boston, said of a far-famed financier: "He is all right at heart, but his outside is prickly, and you must handle him with great caution—as they handled the Tin Can Gambler."

A gambler of Tin Can borrowed a sum from a money lender, and when the note fell due he said he could not settle.

"You must settle," shouted the money lender. "If you don't settle I'll."

"But the gambler, taking a revolver from his boot, pointed it at the money lender and said:

"Eat that note, or I'll let daylight through you."

And the money lender, after a moment's silent thought, crumpled the note into a ball, put it in his mouth, chewed vigorously, and then with a gulp swallowed the pulpy morsel.

"That does save your life," said the gambler, in a mollified tone, and the next day he had a streak of luck and paid the money lender in full.

The money lender was much pleased with his honesty, and when the gambler, a few days later, called and asked for a new loan, he was readily accommodated.

The gambler having pocketed the new loan, sat down, dipped a pen in the ink and selected a sheet of paper whereon to write the usual acknowledgment. But the money lender hastily interrupted.

"Hold on, my friend," he said, and he ran to a cupboard.

"Wait a minute, my friend. Would you mind writing it on this soda can?"

"—Illustrated Weekly Magazine.

The conversation in the lobby of Washington hotel turned to the great game of litigation and the bank roll required to properly play it, when Congressman Stevens of Nebraska recalled an incident.

One day, according to Congressman Stevens, a man entering the office of the lawyer, said that he had had a dispute with a neighbor over the shooting of a dog.

The lawyer listened to the details, which did not look very promising.

"Look here, Mr. Smith," he finally remarked to the would-be client. "I don't think it would be either you or me to carry this to any length. Don't you think that it should be settled out of court?"

"Oh, yes," was the prompt rejoinder of Mr. Smith. "As a matter of fact I suggested it."

"I see," musingly responded the lawyer. The objection comes from the other side.

"Yes," said the client, just a little regretfully, "the bloomin' yap won't fight."

This one was told at a recent social by Congressman William A. Oldham of Arkansas, when the conversation turned to peculiar cases at law.

Some time ago, according to Congressman Oldham, a man in one of the southern states had his next door neighbor arrested on a charge of willfully damaging a chicken.

The judge looked at the charge with mingled amusement and surprise, and when the plaintiff was put on the

"My neighbor caught the chicken in his garden," answered the plaintiff, "and wrung its neck."

"I see," returned the judge. "What was the chicken worth?"

"It was worth 75 cents," answered the plaintiff.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Airships and Guns

Boston Herald: A good deal has been said as to the ability of the coming navies of the air to keep out of range of guns on the earth. It has been contended that aeroplanes could safely do scouting in time of war at a height of 5000 feet. When rising higher than that there would naturally be an increasing difficulty of observation, as well as of sustained navigation. Now we are to have a craft that will send an immense shell to six times the height at which the aeroplanes were to scout safely above battlefields. Those who said that there would be no safety there are right.

IN TORTURE WITH TERRIBLE ERUPTION

Horribly Itching Pimples. Scratched Till Bled. Thoroughly Miserable. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trouble Disappeared.

Watkins Park, Edgewater-on-the-Hudson, N. J. "About two years ago I had a terrible breaking out of horribly itching pimples all over the stomach and upper part of my legs. It was a torture and scratched till I bled and could only sleep fitfully at night and so glad to see the day dawn. I was feverish and thoroughly miserable. The red pimples had got a head and began to bleed. I rubbed them with a rough cloth, they itched so. They bled together and made sores about the size of a nickel and scabbed over. My clothing irritated the sores so that I put a damp handkerchief next to them. Some said it was the itch and others the blives. "I took several treatments but got no relief. I was suffering for over six weeks when I began with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed myself with Cuticura Soap and hot water every night and when I had dried myself I rubbed the Cuticura Ointment thoroughly in and to my astonishment by the end of a week the whole trouble had disappeared and the old skin brushed off. I have not had a sign of a spot on my body since." (Signed) C. W. Charles, Nov. 9, 1912.

Hard-Worked.

Full River Globe: Secretary Bryan is working harder to make both ends meet than the average man with a much smaller income would care to. His days are spent at his desk in the state department which he leaves to his Chautauqua engagements and after having delivered his lecture takes the sleeper back to Washington. It would seem as though in justice to himself that he either ought not to have so many hours in the fire at one time or that he get another job that would allow him more leisure.

Steel Cars

Nashua Telegraph: For the last three years the Pullman company has not built a single wooden car and it has been largely refitting its old cars with steel under frames and ends. Unfortunately it could not effect a complete replacement in so short a time and the extraordinary demands of the summer season required the use of the old cars destroyed in the wreck at North Haven. But the Pullman company and American railroads generally are to be credited with pressing steel substitution for some years back while the New York and New Haven stands at a disgraceful contrast. Now an enforced and highly expensive replacement of wooden stock with steel cars may justly be expected.

Schedule K

He says nobody can have any definite opinion about it till the bill passes conference and is approved by the president. When it is law his company and other woolen manufacturers will do their best to operate their machinery no matter what the tariff rates may be.

DRACUT HOUSES ROBBED

Burglars at the Peter H Donohoe Farm.

The Peter H. Donohoe farm in Dracut, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Maguire and family, as well as the home of Mr. and Mrs. Parker Wiggin, neighbors, were visited by daring robbers Monday. At the former place the intruders got away with a lady's gold watch and chain and $10 in cash, but in the other house it seems they found nothing that suited them, so they departed after emptying the contents of bureau drawers on the floor.

The theft was committed in the early hours. Mrs. Maguire was awakened by a strange noise in the house. She roused her husband and the couple made an investigation and arrived in another room in time to see two men leap through a window. A telephone call was sent to the police station and a few minutes later the limousine loaded with blue coats arrived on the scene, but inasmuch as the officers of the law did not have the slightest clue to work on, the robbers are still at large.

The members of the school committee are facing a very difficult problem in the accommodating of all the pupils of the various schools. By transferring the fifth grade pupils from the Princeton to the Highland school, they incurred the dissatisfaction of a large number of the parents. # BREAK LOWELL'S WINNING STREAK

Ten-Inning Game Lost to Fall River by Score of 4-3—Magee Stars at Bat and in the Field

In a ten-inning game, featured by empty stands and wintry blasts, which kept blowing across the field, Fall River, finally broke the Lowell club's winning streak by defeating them yesterday afternoon by the score of 4 to 3. In spite of the cold weather both teams played fast ball with a few exceptions.

Cargo was in the box for the Lowell team and Woodman was his opponent. Wood was very wild while Woodman pitched great ball in the pinches.

Cargo opened the first with a single to right and went to third on two wild pitches. Devine walked. Umpire Rorty sent Devine to second and Cargo across the plate when Wood made a balk. Catterson walked. Devine and Catterson both advanced a base when Howard sacrificed. Mulvey fled out to Aubrey and DeGroat caught Mulvey's fly.

Lowell evened matters up, in the second half. Clemens fled out to Howard but Miller singled to center. He stole second after Thomas fled to Devine. Magee lifted a fly to Martin which was dropped and Miller scored. Magee took second. Halstein walked. Magee bled to third on the last ball. Halstein stole second but DeGroat sent a high fly to Campbell.

Score: Lowell 1, Fall River 1. Wood gave Campbell a pass in the second. After Connolly struck out, Woodman sent Campbell to third with a single to right but was thrown out when DeGroat threw to Aubrey. The latter threw out Cargo. Howard pulled down Aubrey's liner with a great one hand stab. Dee struck out and Wood grounded out.

Score: Lowell 1, Fall River 1. Fall River went out in order in the third. Devine struck out. Catterson was a victim to Miller and Halstein and Howard grounded to Aubrey. Clemens was thrown out by Woodman. Miller fouled to Mulvey. Connolly took Thomas' foul fly.

Score: Lowell 1, Fall River 1. Mulvey started the fourth with a single to center. Martin sacrificed him to second. Mulvey stole third. He scored on Campbell's sacrifice bunt. Connolly walked. Woodman struck out.

Wood struck out. Clemens fled out to Howard. Miller fled to Martin. Score: Fall River 3, Lowell 1. The sixth resulted in another run for Lowell. In the first half Martin singled and was sacrificed to second by Campbell. Connolly's single sent him to third. Woodman fled out to Dee. Wendell, running for Connolly, was thrown out trying to make second.

Thomas tripped to deep right field and Magee brought him home with an infield hit. Halstein sacrificed to left. Aubrey fled to Cargo. Score: Fall River 3, Lowell 2. The seventh was uneventful. Cargo grounded to Aubrey. Devine fled to left and stole second, but Catterson fled to Magee and Dee threw out Howard.

Dee struck out. Wood scratched a hit to Cargo. Clemens was a victim to Mulvey on his foul fly. Miller was hit and the bases were full when Connolly missed the third strike on Thomas. Thomas was out at second.

Score: Fall River 4, Lowell 2. The eighth inning decided the contest. Martin's grounder was fielded by Halstein. Magee made a wonderful catch of Campbell's fly. Connolly reached second base when Wood threw his grounder over Halstein's head. Woodman slammed a hard one at Aubrey and Connolly scored the winning run. Cargo was a cinch for Miller and Halstein.

Lowell went out in order. DeGroat lifted a fly to the right fence, but Catterson was under it. Aubrey popped a short fly to Woodman. Dee made the third out when he grounded to Woodman.

GILBERT E. TOMLINSON IS NEW FISH IN THE SCHOOL OF "HUMAN PICKERELS," HE'S FAST

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—There is a new fish in the school of "human pickerels." He's Gilbert E. Tomlinson, a young Philadelphian. He won his spurs—or would it be proper to say his scales?—when he defeated the great Bud Goodwin for the $50 yard A. A. U. championship swim at Travers island, New York. It proved Goodwin's Waterloo, for it was the first time the speedy New York Athletic club swimmer had been defeated at one of his own pet distances. Goodwin has held medals for being the fastest man in the country from a quarter of a mile up, Tomlinson, who is only a boy, did the half mile in 12 minutes 43 3-5 seconds. This was better than Goodwin's time of 12 minutes 53 seconds, but did not equal Goodwin's standing record for the distance of 12 minutes 42 seconds.

Well, that pennant is now a certainty but it doesn't look any more certain now than it did a month ago. This will be the second pennant that Manager Gray has won for this city during the short time he has figured in New England league ball.

Umpire Rorty was in his glory yesterday. With a small attendance and a cold day which kept everyone in motion in order to keep warm Rorty pulled off some very ludicrous stunts in announcing the double bill for tomorrow Red said: "The management has asked me to announce that all those present are earnestly requested to bring a few friends with them tomorrow."

Two more games with the Busters tomorrow. Burkott will have his hands full now if he intends to land in second place with Portland going along at their present clip. Yes, and if Lawrence shows strong the Worcester team has a chance to finish in fourth position.

Red Rorty is just as funny off the diamond as he is in his umpire's regalia. Rorty and the writer boarded a car for the ball park yesterday and the former tendered the conductor a bill in payment for the fares. The conductor made a mistake in the change he handed back to Rorty and was immediately called back by the red headed umpire. "You've short changed me," said Red and the conductor immediately made good. "Now you see the difference between you and me, do you Mr. Conductor," said Red. "If you make a mistake you get a call down but if I make one I get mobbed." Many people were in the car who knew the popular umpire and he was given a great hand for his spontaneous wit.

Magee played a wonderful game in left field yesterday. All of his putouts were difficult but James was right on the job and chased them all with deadly results to the batters.

Halstein made a grand pickup in the second inning of Aubrey's poor throw. Aubrey had to travel to court with Cargo's grounder and fielded the ball low to first. The Lowell first sacker was loudly applauded by his teammates for the play.

Daly is expected to leave the Lowell camp within the next few days. He is greatly needed in the White Sox regiment, as their catchers are not in good shape. Daly will be given a grand opportunity to make good with the Chicago Americans.

Red Murphy, the scrappy little catcher who was with the Lowell team at the beginning of this season, has once more donned a Lowell uniform. Murphy was with the Fredrickton club until a week ago but baseball down that way has played out its welcome and the league disbanded. Manager Gray expects Murphy to develop into a good ball player.

Howard, Fall River's center fielder, is a ball player whom it would be well to watch. He has everything that goes to make a batter and an outfielder and it would not surprise us to hear of him in faster company. Howard's home is in Washington, D. C. and he first got his knowledge of the game by watching Clark Griffith's men in their morning practice.

CAPT. CULLEN GETS BUSY SERIES OPENS SEPT. 17

Issues Call for Candidates for Football Team

The First Game Between Lowell and Hartford

"Jake" Cullen, right tackle on the High school eleven for the past two seasons, will lead the football team this fall in one of the heaviest scheduled series.

The series has the sanction of the national board of baseball leagues and the games will be played on Sept. 17, 18 and 21 at Lowell and Sept. 19, 20 and 23 at Hartford. Should a seventh game be necessary, it will be played on a neutral park to be selected later. Each team will be allowed to use 11 players, and four umpires, two from each league, will officiate.

NOTED INVENTOR DEAD
Nathan P. Stevens Was a Former Lowell Man

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 10.—Nathan P. Stevens, noted as an inventor of locomotive machinery and pioneer in the electric lighting of Concord, died at his residence on Center street yesterday morning.

He was born Jan. 7, 1836, son of Andrew and Betsy Pagn Stevens, in Barnard, Vt. At the age of 14 he removed to Lowell, Mass., and started his career in the Lowell Machine shop. Later he was employed in the shops of the Lowell and Boston and Old Colony railroads. When about 36 years old he came to Concord and entered the old Northern railroad shops.

His first notable invention was a locomotive cylinder pattern, which revolutionized locomotive construction of that period and is still in general use in railroad shops. Other inventions in wide use are a cylinder boring bar, a locomotive valve, steel planing machine, and a cylinder facing machine, of which later he took up the manufacture when he severed his connection with the Northern railroad, and continued until advancing years compelled retirement.

In 1855, with the late A. S. Hammond, he was the first electric lighting plant in Concord, and for about three years lighted the business portion of the city from the station in the basement of the Dow building on Bridge street. In 1859, the plant was sold to the Concord Gas Light company, but Mr. Stevens continued to operate it until the station on Bridge street was placed in operation.

He was quick to recognize the value of the new agent and was the first man in the country engaged in manufacture to establish a three-phase motor in his shop for power purposes. During his long career many other inventions were placed on the market, but the principal output of his shop was the machines noted above.

Mr. Stevens had five brothers, all of whom figured prominently in the railroad world as master mechanics of some of the largest systems in the country. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Benton O. Pillsbury.

Mrs. Thaw Is Ill
MONTREAL, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, mother of Harry K. Thaw, accompanied by a trained nurse and a maid, arrived here yesterday and immediately announced that she was too ill to receive visitors. Even counsel for her son were denied admittance to her suite at the hotel.

Steel Cars Saved Lives
NEW MADISON, O., Sept. 10.—An all-steel train, probably saved a score of persons from being killed yesterday when the Pennsylvania flyer that left New York at 6:30 Monday night and due in St. Louis at 5:30 last evening, was derailed by a raised rail near Wyke's station, four miles west of here yesterday and 35 persons were injured. Three, it is believed, were fatally hurt, and eighteen are in a hospital at Richmond, Ind.

Horse Crushed Into Window
BOSTON, Sept. 10.—A runaway horse created some excitement in the West End about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, by plunging through a plate-glass window at 48 Sudbury street, where two shoemakers were at work. They were Pellegrino Vecchi, the proprietor and Luigi Lali. At the time, Michael Kelly of 13 Shawmut street was waiting for a repair job and he made a rush for the street.

The horse had barely got started coming down the hill when he made his mad dash and the driver, Joseph Glavinetti of 32 Compton street, saved himself by jumping.

The horse and express wagon belonged to Nicholson & Peterson of 205 Summer street. He had only a few scratches and minor bruises.

PELKEY QUILTS BURNS
Says Their Fight at Calgary Was "Frame Up"

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 10.—Arthur Pelkey, the heavyweight fighter, whose victory over Luther McCarty in a Calgary arena was followed by the latter's death, has parted company with Tommy Burns, his manager.

Immediately after cancelling his contract with Burns, Pelkey yesterday gave to a Portland sporting editor a signed "confession" in which he alleged that he and Burns faked their six round fight at Calgary, March 25 last. Pelkey charges that Burns took advantage of the fact that he was penniless and induced him to "frame up" the match, and that they rehearsed the battle nightly in a garret. "I could have whipped him easily," says Pelkey in the statement, "but he wanted to make a good showing before his friends and he made me take two knockdowns to one for him. We lost the fight of Burns' house and we got away with the fake all right but the crookedness of it has been hurting me ever since. It was the only time I didn't fight on the square and I shall never do another crooked thing in my life."

Pelkey asserts that he has never had an offer to fight Jack Johnson in Paris. Telegrams pretending to convey invitations to clash with Johnson for large purses were cooked up, he said, for press agent purposes.

NEW HAVEN ROAD NEEDS MONEY

Pres. Elliott Proposes to Spend $7,000,000 for Steel Cars and Other Improvements

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Declaring that the proposed $7,000,000 issue of debenture bonds is the "only feasible and practicable method for raising money necessary for meeting the floating indebtedness, purchasing equipment and effecting necessary improvement on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, two railroad presidents, Howard Elliott of the New Haven, and Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania, addressed the Massachusetts public service commission yesterday in support of the New Haven's petition for permission to issue the bonds.

President Elliott set forth the needs of the New Haven and said that while a greater sum of money must be raised in the near future, the proposed issue is an emergency measure and is for immediate needs.

"I propose," he said, "to spend seven million dollars of this issue immediately for the safety of the traveling public. It will be spent for steel cars, replacing our signal system and other like purposes."

The new president frankly admitted that he was ignorant of many things concerning the road. He had little knowledge of steamship and trolley subsidiary lines he said, and was not familiar with the contract between the road's directors and the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., under which the Morgan firm was made the road's fiscal agent.

President Rea of the Pennsylvania railroad, appearing as a New Haven director, said that the present monetary conditions made the proposed issue necessary.

Hearing Resumed Today

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—Reasons for the approval of the petition of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad for permission to issue $7,000,000 in per cent. and debenture bonds were again considered today by the Massachusetts public service commission at the resumption of the hearings begun yesterday. Railroad officials, at the request and financial interests of this city and New York were so largely represented at the opening session yesterday that the room of the commission was uncomfortably crowded and Chairman Frederick J. MacLeod ordered today's session held in larger quarters at the state house.

It is expected that the hearing will continue throughout tomorrow. In addition to hearing further testimony in behalf of the road on the need of the debenture issue the commission will give an opportunity to opponents of the plan to present their objections.

Morgan G. Bulkeley of Connecticut and Louis D. Brandeis of this city have entered an appearance

Only seven applications have been received for positions as principal in the elementary evening schools, while about double that number are required. So far as the minor positions are concerned there is no dearth of applicants and for teaching positions in the evening high school, 40 have made application, but only two have signified their intention to take the examination for the position of principal. Among the applicants are several college and normal school graduates.

Rev. John Elmen, pastor of the Swedish Congregational church, and his wife, were given a surprise at the church last night, when a large gathering of members of the congregation helped the pastor and his wife to celebrate their fifth wedding anniversary. Although the tokens were mainly indicative of the "wooden wedding" event, there was a substantial purse as well. The presentation was made by Alfred Swanson, and Rev. Mr. Elmen responded, after which a varied musical program was given and refreshments were served.
